Leather Men Battle on Tariff

UZCUDUN, Spanish Basque, and Max Schmeling, powerful German, pounded each other through 15 rounds in New York, while gentlemen and ladies enjoyed themselves immensely.

There is joy, for many, in watching a fight, when you know you can't be hurt.

At the end of 15 rounds, Mr. Runyon, sport historian, reports: "Paolino's countenance was completely bashed in. Both of Paolino's eyes were almost closed, his face was a red smear. He was drunk with dizziness."

The non-sporting historian observes, with mild interest, that Americans, in these days of wealth, prosperity and bootleg cocktails, seeking a heavyweight champion, must pick men born abroad.

When Rome began sliding down-hill, real fighters for the Forum and the army were imported from the north and east. The Romans had become good watchers of fights, ceasing to be good fighters.

Mr. Miller, new president of the Loft Company, big candy concern, announces an increase of almost 100 per cent pay for girls that sell candy.

Instead of $14, they will get $27 a week.

Mr. Miller thinks this will enable the girls to look neater, increase their interest in work, also the company's profits.

It will do that and something more important. It will give the girls enough to live decently, and as many of them are destined to have babies, it will provide a better next generation.

The "Modern Disciples of God," dwelling in New Jersey, believe that medical care is unnecessary if you have enough faith.

The mother relied on faith, the child died of blood poisoning.

Disease germs are real. The Rockefeller Institute can show them to you, under a microscope, rushing frantically around in a single drop of human blood.

The germ of sleeping sickness looks like a red hot coiled spring. The germ of the most horrible blood disease looks like a dragon with a big head, rushing to and fro in its little lake, the blood drop.

The "Modern Disciples of God" and others might change their minds about medicine if they could look through one of those microscopes.

The World War started 15 years ago yesterday at Sarajevo, when the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, was assassinated. That spark started the warfare that killed nearly 20,000,000 human beings, cost $50 billions of dollars and threatened to wipe out civilization in western Europe.

Two Bosnian students murdered the archduke and his wife "to free Serbia from the Austrian yoke." In Jugo-Slavia they are national heroes, martyrs and memorial services praising them

SPANISH FLIERS SAVED AT SEA

Picked Up 100 Miles Off the Azores by a British Ship; All Well, Plane Salvaged

Madrid, June 29 (AP)—All but given up for dead, Major Ramon Franco, famous Spanish aviator and three companions who started a transatlantic flight to the United States by way of the Azores more than a week ago and have since been missing, today were en route to Gibraltar aboard the British airplane-carrier Eagle.

Snatched from the waters of the Atlantic at a point barely 100 miles southeast of the island of Santa Maria on the tip of the Azores Archipelago, the airmen were reported all well by the British rescue ship. Even their plane, a huge two-motored Dornier-Wal, was salvaged.

It was learned that Maj. Franco's seaplane was discovered by two planes sent out from the Eagle just when they were about to give up the search.

Although previous reports stated

Seeks Divorce

Edith Mason, prima donna of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, who has sued her husband, Giorgio Polacco, director of the opera, for divorce. The grounds for the action have been suppressed by court order.

EDITH MASON FILES SUIT

Chicago, June 29 (AP)—Edith Mason, prima donna of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, has filed suit in circuit court to divorce Giorgio Polacco, director of the company. The bill, which was ordered suppressed, was filed just one day before their 10th wedding anniversary.

Miss Mason refused to comment. Judge Harry M. Fisher, in whose court the bill was filed, said he did not know the content of the bill, nor even the name of the attorney representing the soprano.

Maestro Polacco is 54 years old and Miss Mason 36. Their only child, Grace Edith, was born in the summer of 1925, with Mrs. Arthur Meeker acting as godmother. When the child was still an infant Polacco was reported to have inured his life for $300,000 with the daughter as beneficiary.

Polacco is reported at sea en

DISAGREE IN THEIR DEMANDS

Ask Both Higher and Lower Rates at Hearing Before Senate Committee

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Hide, leather and shoe interests were given the stage exclusively at the Senate subcommittee tariff hearings today, testimony on the controversial sugar tariff having been concluded.

Marion De Vries, representing the tanners' council, declared the House rates ranging from 10½ to 20 per cent on leathers were beneficial, but inadequate. The tanners had no objection to the proposed 10 per cent duty on hides, he said, adding that the farmers would benefit also by the rates on leather.

PROTEST HOUSE RATE

John H. Rose, Glastonbury, Ct., representing the pig leather manufacturers, protested against the House rate of 25 per cent on both rough and finished pig leather and asked a duty of 10 per cent on rough and 30 per cent on partly or completely finished pig skins.

Monroe Einstein, New York, on behalf of the shoe dealers' association, requested restoration of shoe

JONES HAS 3-STROKE LEAD

Sarazen Is in Second Place With 218; Espinoza Is Third

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Winged Foot Club, June 29—Starting the final round with a three-stroke lead on the field, Bobby Jones is apparently headed for another United States open championship.

Bobby was sent away this morning trailing the pacemakers, Al Espinosa and Gene Sarazen, by two strokes, and he fired 71 for the third [illegible] to hit the lead with 215 for the second time since the start of this classic.

Sarazen moved into second place with a 76, which was one stroke better than Espinosa was able to do, giving him 218 for 54 holes.

Densmore Shute, the former Ohio amateur, matched strokes with Bobby Jones through the 45th hole, but the pressure proved too much for him and he staggered home on 41 to annex fourth place with 223.

Jones went out in 25, picking up a stroke on Espinosa, and going into second place, as Sarazen needed 38 to reach the turn.

It was at the 46th hole that Bobby took over the lead. This is a one-shotter and Espinosa failed

KILLER OF MARLOW A BOSTON GUNMAN

Known as Remorseless North End Desperado Lately in Alcohol "Racket"

Boston and New York police today pressed their search in this city for a well-known North End gunman wanted for the slaying of Frank Marlow, racketeer.

This man, said to have recently become affiliated with the alcohol "racket," has not been seen in Boston for several days.

According to the police, he has a record and is known as a remorseless killer ready to shoot on slight provocation.

Search is also being prosecuted for the proprietor of a former Boston night club, now in the bootlegging business, who is also missing and who is sought for questioning.

This man's partner has been questioned by Boston inspectors, but is understood to have furnished no information concerning his whereabouts.

Anthony Ardino, a chauffeur of Prince st., North End, for whom a general alarm was sent out by the police, was eliminated from the case when it was learned he was confined in Charles st. jail at the time of the Marlow slaying.

According to the police, the motive of the Boston gunman for the shooting of Marlow was the racketeer's failure to pay bets laid on Riccardo Bertazolia, who won on a foul from Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, in a recent boxing bout at Boston Garden.

From other sources, however it was learned that the man sought was infuriated by Marlow's attempted invasion of the Boston

UPSETS RULING ON TOY CANNON

Sale of calcium carbide for use in toy cannon on the Fourth of July is illegal, regardless of a decision to the contrary by Judge Zottoli of the Boston municipal court, in a test case, State Fire Marshal George C. Neal today informed Fire Chief Fred A. Tenney of Braintree.

Chief Tenney had seized tubes of the chemical, and following Judge Zottoli's decision the concerns in question asked him to return them. He communicated with Marshal Neal and then refused.

According to Chief Tenney, the State official, quoted the law as follows: 'No inflammable gas or vapor shall be generated or used to produce an explosion for celebration purposes."

"Marshal Neal contends it is a violation of the law to sell this substance," said Tenney. "He said Judge Zottoli's ruling did not change the law and that it was just as illegal now to sell calcium carbide as before the second test case, of which he officially had no knowledge.

He said he could easily show the judge that it was a violation of the law quoted and other statutes as well. If necessary, he said, he would go to other judges and courts."

New London, Ct., June 29 (AP)—For the first time in marine history divers will emerge from a sunken submarine, while it lies on the bottom in deep water and demonstrate the practicability of effecting rescues from it. This was made known at the submarine base today with announcement that tests of Simon Lake's 25-year-old submarine Defender's special submerged diving apparatus will be made in Block Island sound next week.

Guard for Prosecutor After Convict Threat

The life of William T. Kelley, assistant district attorney for Norfolk-Plymouth district, has been guarded for seven weeks in the fear that Albert Aldridge, escaped State Prison convict, will seek to carry out a threat he made last year and kill the prosecutor, it was disclosed today.

Braintree police are on guard at his home, 7 Prescott lane, East Braintree, every night, and have been since Aldridge made his fifth and successful escape from Charlestown on May 9.

Aldridge was sentenced last September to a term of 8 to 10 years in State Prison for aiding Stephen Hoppe in his attempt to escape from Dedham jail. Kelley prosecuted the case in Norfolk Superior Court and urged Judge Sanford to pass the sentence announced.

Aldridge denied his guilt, declared that he was framed and threatened the prosecutor's life when he emerged from prison.

Since his escape from State Prison no clue has been unearthed as to his whereabouts and the guard on Kelley's life will be maintained until his capture, according to District Attorney Winfield N. Wilbar.

Court Orders Haskell Girl to Shun Aunt

Mrs. Beatrice W. Haskell, Boston society woman, today won custody of her daughter, Muriel, under an agreement stipulating the child should not be closely associated or in frequent contact with Mrs. Haskell's sister, the former Dorothy Williams, who wed Walter J. O'Neil, night club pianist.

Judge McCool, who heard Mrs. Haskell's suit for divorce from Henry Carvell Haskell of Pawtucket, announced some time ago she had evidence warranting divorce on grounds of cruelty, but questioned his jurisdiction because of her residence then at Central Falls, R. I.

Today he granted the divorce and an agreement as to custody of Muriel disclosed the unusual stipulation.

Mrs. Haskell and Mrs. O'Neil are daughters of Dr. Hubert J. Williams of 86 Commonwealth ave.

Mrs. Haskell's sister married O'Neil last December following a romance that had its inception at a night club. Several weeks later O'Neil was sued for $25,000 by Peggy Taylor of Hemenway st., who alleged breach of promise to wed.

Haskell will pay $8 weekly for the support and education of his daughter, the agreement further stipulated.

POSED AS MARLOW FRIEND

Fearful that Marlow would drive him out of business, the fugitive is said to have made boasts during dinner his presence while at the same time posing as a friend of the racketeer.

For the first time in many years the underworld does not know definitely the whereabouts of one of its prominent members.

When the description and photographs arrived at Jamaica Plain station, Special Officer George Bates recognized the features of Andrino as a man convicted on Monday of violating the liquor laws.

Bates told Capt. Gustafson, acting chief inspector, that Andrino was fined $500 by Chief Justice Hall in Suffolk Superior Court and was reminded to Chandler at jail in default of the fine. On Tuesday the fine and jail sentence for Andrino was released. Marlow was shot Monday night.

WOMAN GIVES TIP.

It was learned that late last night when Inspectors James E. Conlin and James Concannon, with New York detectives, were questioning a man in connection with the ammunition with a Boston bootlegger they were interrupted by a telephone call.

The call is said to have come from a woman who was in tears and who furnished a name of a man supposed to have been driver of the car in which Marlow was taken for a ride.

The woman also suggested the name of a man she believed to be a part of the death car driver.

The detectives immediately placed a watch on houses in Prince and South Hull and Stephen J. in the Back Bay and both places are still under surveillance.

The woman told the officers she believed the man who she said was the driver of the death car would attempt to leave Boston on the midnight train. Both trains leaving this city near midnight were covered at South Station and Back Bay but without result.

Three New York state troopers headed by Lieut. Kennedy took occasion to halt their activities long enough to visit Supt. Crowley and assure him there was no basis for reports of friction between the two departments. They said that on the arrival from New York Supt. Crowley was busy and they were unable to get in touch with their colleagues who preceded them that they did not wait.

PRAISE BOSTON POLICE

Lieut. Kennedy said he appreciated that they could not ask or expect better cooperation than they have received from the Boston department, and praised Inspectors Conlin and Concannon for the work they have done in producing men wanted for questioning.

Meanwhile, a fresh outbreak of gangster warfare was feared in New York when a death threat reached one of the girls questioned in the case.

Myrtle Burke, 19, New York model and roommate of Betty Farley, who told of the flight with Marlow, worked for Marlow, received a post card threatening her, it was said.

"You better keep your damn mouth shut or you will get the same dose Marlow got," it read.

6 Convicted in False K. of C. Oath Trials

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Members of the board of directors of the Knights of Columbus were informed today by Luke E. Hart of St. Louis, the order's supreme advocate, that convictions of defendants had been obtained in libel actions growing out of the publication during and after the last presidential campaign of the bogus "Knights of Columbus Oath."

Defendants of this "oath," he recalled, have been denounced by the committee of Past Grand Masters of Odd Fellows, Moose, which examined the Knights of Columbus ritual several years ago and found "neither the oath nor any similar oath or pledge."

Hiker Has Speed of Motor Boats Cut

Concord, N. H., June 29—The Public Service Commission has issued an order restricting the speed of motor boats at Sunapee Harbor as a result of a recent hearing on complaint from Dr. Herbert Welsh of Philadelphia, who has hiked from that city to Sunapee 33 times. Action was taken by the commission under a law passed by the last Legislature, which requires motor boat engines to be muffled, and authorizes the commission to make regulations governing the speed of such craft.

HOOVER TALKS TO STIMSON ON FRENCH DEBT

Plea for a Delay in Paying $400,000,000 "Embarrassing" to Administration

Washington, June 29 (INS)—The embarrassing request that France has put up to the United States to postpone collection of the $400,000,000 war supplies debt, due August 1, was the subject of a long conference between President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson today.

The embarrassment arises from the doubt as to whether President Hoover has legal authority to grant the French request without the express consent of Congress. On that point there are many divergent opinions.

Pointing out that the $400,000,000th ligation is a purely commercial transaction, Senator Reed (D., Pennsylvania), who usually speaks for the treasury viewpoint, declared today the President could not grant the French request by the negative policy of merely not pressing for paymen. Congress, he said, already has indicated its "acquiescence in the postponement" by adopting the resolution conferring authority on the President, provided the general debt agreement was ratified.

France Faces Debt Crisis as U. S. Holds Out No Hope

Paris, June 29 (AP)—American Secretary of State Stimson gave Ambassador Claudel no hope for a favorable decision on the French request yesterday for postponement of maturity of the $40,000,000 French debt for American war stocks, it appeared today at a meeting of the Cabinet, which considered Ambassador Claudel's dispatch in reply.

The finance committee of the Chamber, which was informed of the contents of the ambassador's reply, adjourned without taking action until Tuesday, when they consider further the question of ratification of the Franco-American and Franco-British debt settlement.

STINSON OFFERS NO HOPE

Ambassador Claudel reported that Secretary Stimson received the request from the French Chamber for delay on the war stocks payment with great emotion. M. Claudel described him as showing intense regret that the demand was one which seemed little likely to receive satisfaction.

It was considered certain the Premier would have his troubles when he took that answer back to the Chamber of Deputies. Even though his "Armistice Day Cabinet" of last November should fall, the task of reorganizing the Government would be left to Poincare, since even his enemies feel no one in France is so well qualified to see the liquidation of the war through to its end.

Meanwhile the deputies have had a chance to cool off after their explosion Thursday, which resulted in the premier's request to the United States for postponement of the maturity date.

MAY DEMAND RATIFICATION

The fact that the whole list on the Bourse took a tumble yesterday was believed to have led to many other sensational sales. The possibility advanced was that Poincare would tell the Chamber he had handed its request to Washington and was turned down. He would then demand and obtain ratification of the agreement speedily.

There was always, too, the possibility that he would pass his problem to the people by calling a public and leave him to untie the knot by presidential decree. He has made evident that that ratification of the accords with Great Britain and the United States is a crime and immediate necessity for France.

Slow Drivers Must Let Others Pass

Newport, Me., June 29. An automobile law passed the following session of there is room enough to do so safely and they are travelling faster than he cares to go.

Clowning out or stalling intentionally will not be tolerated, Judge W. F. Wade of the Municipal Court told Allen E. Bird of Corinna and fined him $25 and costs. State Highway Patrolman H. B. Carson said that Bird originally held up a line of cars by keeping to the middle of the road.

Andover Official Burned by Tarvia

North Andover, June 29—Willard H. Poor, local highway surveyor, was probably fatally burned when he was drenched with a geyser of hot tarvia, heated to 300 degrees, which shot without warning from a big tarvia truck tank which exploded on Railroad ave. while Poor was standing beside the truck.

His name is on the danger list at the Lawrence General Hospital and physicians were still removing the coating of tar which completely enveloped him.

$1500 a Month Alimony

Los Angeles, June 29 (INS)—Mrs. Carey A. Wilson, wife of the prominent screen writer, has been awarded $1500 a month temporary alimony pending the hearing of her husband's divorce suit, in which he charged her with extravagance.

route from Italy to New York.

Despite Miss Mason's refusal to discuss the suit, the newspapers said they learned she intended to demand sole custody of her daughter, a demand which the maestro is expected vigorously to oppose.

There was no information as to what charges were contained in the bill, but friends of the couple were of the opinion that the divorce is asked on technical grounds.

Miss Mason is one of the few American-born women to attain high place on the international opera stage. Her father was a St. Louis grain operator. Her voice was developed by study in Europe, especially Paris, and her American debut was at the Metropolitan, New York, in "Der Rosenkavalier."

STAINED TUX MAY BE CLUE TO 'FIEND'

Store Says Suspect in Girl Attack Rented Dress Clothes

A blood-stained tuxedo, rented, the police say, from a well known men's furnishing store in Boston on the morning of June 10, by the man wanted for the brutal attacks on Miss Alice M. Groden, Cambridge school teacher, and Miss Mary Faramian, Back Bay cripple, has been turned over to the police, who are still on the trail of the fiend.

Further information of another attack by the same man on two Roston nurses, has spurred authorities into redoubled action and has brought assurance of identification and further assistance in the prosecution of the brutal assailant. The two victims, introduced to the fiend suspect as "Mr. Robinson," were taken to Old County rd., Weston, by "Robinson" and a male companion. The second man did not take part in the assault but did nothing to protect them from his companion's fury, it is said.

The blood-stained evening dress was given to the officer by the owner of the men's store, who read the description of the much-wanted man in the newspapers, and remembered that on the morning of June 11, a nervous acting man had returned a suit he had rented the day previous.

Miss Groden was attacked on the night of June 10. Her assailant, who attempted to transform her unconscious form into a human torch by setting her gasoline soaked clothing with a match, wore a tuxedo at the time. He had promised to take Miss Groden to a society dance at the Copley Plaza, when she agreed to keep a "blind date" with him, after a telephone conversation.

The tuxedo, according to the police, was rented shortly before noon on the day of the attacks. The man returned it 24 hours later. When the proprietor of the store noticed the blood stains on the coat he questioned the man about the stains. According to his story to the police the store owner said that the stranger had told him that he had been in an automobile accident the night before. He paid the expense of having the suit cleaned.

Questioned by the police the store owner said that the man corresponded in description with the man sought by the police for a week.

SAVE SEVEN IN $5000 BLAZE

Aroused from sleep in smoke-filled apartments, seven persons fled to safety early today when fire for which two alarms were sounded swept a portion of the three-story combination store and apartment block at 78-78C Broadway, East Somerville.

Timothy A. Connors, a milkman, discovered the blaze in the barber shop of Carmello Albedasa on the ground floor, and John Angelson, employe of a nearby all-night luncheon, ran through the building awakening the occupants.

Those forced to flee were Mr. and Mrs. John Alint, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Condon, Mr. and Mrs. Michael McGonagle and Mrs. T. T. Johns.

Damage of $5000 was caused to the barber shop, Modern fish market and the smoke shop of Morris Carbouch.

Spanish Fliers Saved; Plane Is Salvaged

the Spanish plane was only slightly damaged, latest advices indicated it was badly wrecked.

"We are all right. Kind regards and embraces.

(Signed) "RAMON FRANCO."

That was the message which Commander Franco sent from the Eagle to the commanding officer of the airport of Alcazares today. The fliers used the Alcazares airport as their base on their hop for the Azores.

NEWS OF THE RESCUE.

First news of the rescue was given out at the Spanish ministry of state, which announced it had received the word from the Spanish consul at Gibraltar. The consul's message read:

Franco and companions picked up alive by Eagle near Azores, coming Gibraltar.

This news later was confirmed by the British admiralty in London, which received a message from the Eagle stating that the missing plane had been found in latitude 36.38 north and longitude 24.14 west.

The time of the rescue was not stated, but it was assumed that it took place during the night or early today. The assumption being that the commander of the Eagle had notified Gibraltar by wireless as soon as possible.

MADRID WILD WITH JOY.

The position reported by the Eagle indicated that the Spanish airmen had either flown or drifted a considerable distance toward the island of Santa Maria, after they were last definitely reported by the British steamship Greildon, which heard the sound of their motors about 175 miles southwest of Santa Maria on Saturday morning, 12 hours after they had left Cartagena for the Azores on the first lap of their flight to New York.

Street demonstrations of joy began spontaneously throughout Madrid a few minutes after the governmental announcement of the message saying that Major Franco and his companions had been found safe after floating near the Azores.

SHOUTING AND CHEERING

Thousands of enthusiasts began marching through the streets shouting and cheering. There was a drizzling rain falling, but this did not dampen their ardor and cries of "Viva Franco" constantly resounded.

The men whose rescue had added a new chapter to the history of fliers snatched from death after floating at sea for many days, were Major Ramon Franco, commander officer; Major Eduardo Gonzalez Gallarza, pilot; Capt. Julio Ruiz De Alda, navigator, and Sergt. Pedro Madariaga, mechanic.

After hard luck had dogged their footsteps in their preparations for flight, motor trouble developing with their first plane and a mimic field accident almost ending their second effort, they took off from Alcazares airfield, Cartagena, at 4:50 p. m. on June 21.

THEN LONG SILENCE

They passed over Cadiz and then Cape St. Vincent, Portugal, where they headed out to sea. Little further was heard until the steamship Greildon picked up the sound of their motors Saturday morning.

Then followed a long silence which finally was replaced by a series of reports and announcements that they had arrived in the Azores, all of them subsequently found to be erroneous. Even Premier Primo de Rivera himself gave out a report of their arrival which he was forced to cancel later.

The chief cause of the misinformation arising from a garbled radio dispatch from the Portuguese warship Vasco Da Gama, which reported that the fliers had landed safely in the Azores and would continue their trip on Sunday. Apparently the warship had merely relayed an ordinary press message which it had picked up regarding the fliers' last hop, in turn was picked up garbled at Lisbon.

RESCUE PARTIES SENT OUT

Further reports, all of which subsequently proved without foundation, were received from merchant vessels that had reached the island of San Miguel. When no confirmation could be obtained of the arrival in the Azores, the Spanish government took steps to send out rescue parties and particularly asked Great Britain for the aid of the airplane carrier Eagle, at that time on route from London to its station in the Azores.

Meanwhile Italian and Portuguese ships and planes had started in search for them and even a German plane was being prepared.

The British government acquiesced immediately in the Spanish request and the Eagle began scouring the seas between the European coast and the Azores. Airplanes were sent out and scoured wide areas, but without success.

ADMIRALTY IS THANKED.

Finally the Eagle turned toward Gibraltar to cover a line from the Azores to the entrance of the Mediterranean over which Maj. Franco would likely have flown. That the course was successful is indicated by today's news.

The Spanish minister of marine today telegraphed the British admiralty at Gibraltar as follows:

"Just received news of the Eagle's finding of the Spanish hydro airplane. I am deeply grateful. I thank you wholeheartedly for the splendid help given by the British marines."

HUGE BRITISH AIR PLAN

London, June 29 (INS — Within ten years Great Britain will have the greatest commercial air fleet in the world.

It will consist of the most extensive chain of regular air services ever seen and will cover every part of the far-flung British Empire.

This is not merely a Utopian dream of British aeronautical enthusiasts, but the prophesy of Sir Sefton Brancker, director of civil aviation.

Foreshadowing the dawn of a great era in British aviation, Sir Sefton endeavors to make it clear that during the last few years England has gone out for quality and not quantity in aeronautics.

"We lead the world today in efficiency," he declared in an interview, "and in ten years we ought to be doing more than any other country in the world in the matter of aviation."

Names Macdonald for Census Work

Lowell, June 29 Colin C. Macdonald of 81 Andover st. has been recommended by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers as supervisor of the federal census in the Fifth Congressional District. Lowell will be headquarters for the taking of the census in this district.

Mr. Macdonald is a past commander of Lowell Post of the American Legion. He is a former newspaper man, having worked on papers in Lowell, Boston, Springfield and Worcester. Recently he has been New England representative of the U. S. Housing Corporation with an office in Quincy.

Miss Coolidge to Wed Harry Woodruff

Announcement was made today of the engagement of Miss Emily F. Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge of 203 Berkeley st., Boston, to Harry A. Woodruff, son of the late Lieut. Harry A. Woodruff, U. S. A., and Mrs. Woodruff, who afterward married Dr. Jacques Calve of Boston.

Miss Coolidge was graduated from the Winsor School in 1925 and made her debut in the season of 1925-26, afterward attending Radcliffe College.

Milk Price Up a Cent in Lawrence

Lawrence, June 29—The retail delivery price of milk in Lawrence will advance one cent per quart, from 14½ to 15½ cents, on next Monday morning as a result of the announcement of the Milk Producers' Association to become effective on July 1.

7-CENT SUGAR MAY COME

Washington, June 29 (INS)—The prospects for adoption of a "sliding scale" of sugar tariffs, fair to consumer and producer, were brighter tonight today following the declaration of Rudolph Spreckles, California "sugar king," that the American sugar industry has been favorably considering such a plan for many months.

Spreckles himself proposed a sliding scale of sugar duties to the Senate finance sugar committee, thus pushing the startling proposal for a fixed margin of profit for sugar refiners. As one of the biggest refiners in America, Spreckles declared this profit-fixing feature was due to competition from duty-free Hawaiian and Philippine importations.

The Californian proposed a scale which would guarantee a six-cents a-pound market to American beet sugar growers. He said this price level was necessary to the home industry in which thousands of American farmers are engaged. His scale would force a seven-cents-a-pound price to the consumer.

The Spreckles plan differed widely from that under consideration by Senator Reed Smoot (R.), of Utah, chairman of the finance committee. The Smoot plan, which has been submitted to President Hoover, did "not contain a fixed margin of profit for refiners while the two plans tallied in ranging the Cuban duty from $1 per hundred pounds, when the price of raw sugar is high, to $2.40 per hundred pounds when the price is low, they differed in the application of these rates.

2d Rum Raid Nets Many in Memphis

Memphis, June 29 (AP) — Six squads of federal liquor raiders, each accompanied by a city policeman, launched a second liquor crusade today and expected by night fall to add 40 prisoners to the 82 arrested earlier in the week.

LEATHER MEN IN TARIFF FIGHT

leather to the free list, while Louis M. Hepburn, New York, sought a reduction from 25 per cent to 10 per cent on India tan goat and sheep leathers. Under the present tariff, shoes, leather and hides are all on the free list.

IMPORTS INCREASING

Dr. J. Anthony Schwartzman of New York, representing Rally, Inc., importers of Swiss shoes, said he believed the domestic manufacturer had no objection to importation of high-priced shoes and that if the Republican party needs duty was levied his company would stop importing.

Small imports, he declared, were negligible in comparison with domestic production.

Taking the opposite view, F. G. Wadsworth of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, declared that imports were increasing while domestic production was decreasing. He said 157 Brooklyn factories were suffering directly from importations and asked a higher duty than 20 per cent.

WANTS BIG INCREASE.

Representing the Associated Leather Goods Manufacturers of America and the New York Industry, Abraham Mittenthal, New York leather goods manufacturer, asked for an increase in the House duty from 35 to 37 per cent.

He said there was no increase in "intensive drive" on the American market by foreign manufacturers, and that the domestic manufacturers could not understand why higher duties were given to similar products made of material other than leather.

The same testimony was given by R. A. Kaufman, representing K. Kaufman & Co. of Newark, N. J., that any imports of unfitted bags and suitcases had increased 400 per cent since the present duty was enacted in 1922 and that his factory was operating only about 50 per cent of capacity.

Time Clerk to Check British Employes

London, June 29 (INS)—Scenes unprecedented in the long history of the British Civil Service are likely to be seen at 9 o'clock every morning in Whitehall, London, where the various government departments are housed, as the result of the formation of the second Labor Government.

Dignified civil servants, Class 1, never before known to arrive at their desks before 10 or even 11 o'clock, may be seen running—actually running—so as to be in their offices before the last strokes of the hour have chimed from Big Ben.

These unusual happenings of the Civil Service have discovered that the Labor Cabinet Ministers and parliamentary heads of Government departments have a habit of reporting for work at 9 o'clock sharp, and expect their secretaries and lesser underlings of their departments to be there at the same time.

Now, it is stated, the employes will be timed in and out by an official time clerk.

CHARLTON DOCTORS BATTLE SEPTIC SORE THROAT EPIDEMIC

ONE DYING AND MANY OTHERS STRICKEN

Residents Warned to Keep Away From Crowded Places

Charlton, June 29. With one man reported dying of septic sore throat and eight other persons stricken, Charlton today was organizing for a battle against what seems to be an epidemic.

After a hasty meeting, the selectmen ordered doctors to investigate milk, water and food supplies of the families affected.

All citizens were warned of contact with crowds.

The man critically ill is John Barry, 72, of Charlton City. He is in Worcester City Hospital. Others on the list are Joseph Welch, Mary Welch, Thomas Welch, Charlotte Ferguson, Kathryn Ball, Everet Ashe, Mary Sullivan and Mrs. Edward Stedermann.

Doctors say the infection seems to be like that which several months ago caused many deaths in Lee.

ALIENS IN RUSH TO BE CITIZENS

A crowd of applicants for naturalization papers, seeking to get in under the wire before the increased fees take effect next Monday, jammed the temporary quarters of the U. S. Department of Justice at Young's hotel today. A great number were women. Many had children with them.

The total number of applicants for papers during the week was 1703. The normal number of applicants is a little more than 200 a week.

Declaration of intention to become citizen—termed "first papers"—new fee, $5; old fee, $1.

Petition for naturalization—"second papers"—new fee, $10; old fee, $4.

In addition, all persons seeking citizenship must obtain a certificate of arrival in this country before they can proceed with naturalization petition. The fee for this certificate from the immigration service is $5.

Applicants who arrived before June 3, 1921, and have no record of arrival, are required to pay a fee of $25 to establish residence.

Warning Against Goods on Sidewalk

Newburyport, June 29—Leaving a barrel or two, or even a box now and then on the downtown sidewalks over night wasn't such a bad situation, but when City Marshal John L. McLean found that 24 large wooden bread boxes were left in front of a store all one night he took steps to remedy the condition.

All night patrolmen have been given instructions to notify storekeepers that no barrels or boxes are to be left in the sidewalks in the night time. The city marshal was told that one of the patrolmen told the driver of a truck that it would be all right to leave the bread boxes in front of the store.

The barrels and boxes create a danger and the privilege of leaving them in the sidewalks was abused. If any containers are left out over night now, the storekeepers will be violating the law.

Autoists Refuse to Aid Dying Cyclist

While Anthony Enricollo, Lynn motorcycle crash victim, lay dying by the roadside, early today, three passing motorists refused to take him to a hospital because their cars "would get all bloody," Lynn police were told by witnesses. The authorities were given the registration numbers of the stony hearted drivers.

Enricollo, who is 25 years old and who lives on Bates st., Revere, was knocked from his motorcycle by an auto which collided with him at McDonough sq., Lynn. The car was driven by John Glevus, 25, of Elaine st., Saugus. He sustained a possible fracture of the skull.

'Miss Massachusetts' to Enter College

Newburyport, June 29—Miss Helen Colby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Colby of Franklin st., who is known as "Miss Massachusetts," will enter Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va., in the fall for a preparatory course to become an English teacher.

The young woman, who was graduated from the local high school this week after completing five years' work in three, and graduating with credit, being one of eight to attain that honor, was selected as "Miss Massachusetts" at the Salisbury Beach beauty contest last year at the State encampment of the American Legion.

Summer School to Open on July 8

PLEDGE TO OBEY AL CAPONE IN A LAW SUNDAY VAIN PLEA

Washington, June 29 (AP)—The Anti-Saloon League today made public a pledge to be read tomorrow in churches and Sunday schools co-operating with it in "Loyalty Sunday" observances. It reads:

"In common with other Americans and lovers of liberty throughout the nation on this day we pledge our support to the President of the United States in his efforts to establish law observance and maintain law enforcement.

"We promise to help promote respect for law by obeying its ourselves and encouraging its observation by others. We accept our responsibility to support vigorous enforcement for those who will heed no other appeal."

The league's program also calls for the reading of a quotation from Abraham Lincoln calling for the teaching of reverence for the laws in schools and churches.

Sees Dry Law Collapse

Philadelphia, June 29 (INS)—Judge John Walsh refused to grant a writ of error for "Scarface Al" Capone today. The court ruled no error had been made in his arrest, trial and sentence to one year in jail for carrying concealed deadly weapons.

Methuen Man Is Suicide by Gas

Methuen, June 29—Broken in spirits since the death of his wife and despondent because of lack of employment, Rennie Holdsworth, 45, of Oakland ave., committed suicide at his home yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas. His body was discovered by his son, Thomas Holdsworth, who notified the police.

GAS PURCHASE BY BOSTON CO. IS APPROVED

State Board Backs Contract Renewal With N. E. Fuel and Transportation Co.

The Public Utilities Commission today approved the annual contract by which the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. purchases gas from the New England Fuel and Transportation Co. The price is 31 cents a thousand cubic feet, the same as last year.

At the hearings before the commission, Wycliffe C. Marshall, an attorney of Watertown, protested the contracts on the ground that the two companies were "tied up through interlocking directorates."

The gas company contended that the purchase price is less than what it would cost the company to manufacture gas itself.

The commission again suspended the proposed new 50 cent service charge of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company until August 1, pending completion of its investigation.

New schedules of rates asked for by the Fall River Gas Works Co., the Bangor & Electric Co., and the Malden and Melrose Gas Light Co. were also suspended until August 1.

LYNN GREETS LADY MAYOR

Before 5000 residents gathered in front of City Hall, Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn today presented the keys of the city to Ethel Marchioness Gladys Townshend, mayor of King's Lynn, England, who has crossed the Atlantic to help Lynn celebrate her tercentenary.

The ceremonies were conducted on the City Hall steps with the entire city council present.

Also a recipient of a key was the Marchioness' 13-year-old son, who has nearly as many names as the Prince of Wales but prefers to be called George.

Leaving City Hall with police escort, the Marchioness motored to the Old West Lynn Cemetery, where she laid a wreath upon the grave of Rev. Samuel Whiting, spiritual adviser to the Townshend family 30 years ago, and the man who named Lynn.

An extensive reception is scheduled for the English guests at the home of Benjamin N. Johnson, wealthy Lynn resident, and Boston attorney who, at Mayor Bauer's request, is acting as host in behalf of the city. More than 200 prominent members of North Shore society the special tercentenary program does not end until tomorrow.

The marchioness in conversing with Chairman Johnson at the greeting, remarked that she was very happy to visit Lynn, adding, "I am looking forward to my visit, because I wish to meet the women of your city. I look on my visit as one that will help to cement to a greater extent the friendly feeling between old Lynn and new Lynn."

Asked how she liked America, the marchioness declared: "I'm dazed, simply dazed. I really don't know what to think, but it's all wonderful."

To Open Drive on Unlicensed Dogs

Amesbury, June 29—Another drive to compel the owners of unlicensed dogs to pay the fee for this year has been opened by Police Chief Chester Prescott, following a meeting of the board of selectmen, who considered the matter and decided there were too many delinquents.

Every dog owner who has thus far failed to pay the license fee will be notified to settle, and if he doesn't heed the request within a few days he will be summoned to court.

A similar drive was conducted by Prescott a few months ago which resulted in the collection of a considerable sum for dog licenses.

Firemen's Relief Fund Given $25

Lawrence, June 29—The funds of the local Firemen's Mutual Relief Association were swelled today by the addition of a check for $25 from T. J. AIR FIANCE NOT TOLD GIRL MAY DIE

Jensens Keep News of Viola Gentry's Condition From "Bill" Ulbrich

Roosevelt Field, L. I., June 29 (AP)—Sorrow and anxiety were unwelcome stowaways in the monoplane, Three Musketeers, as it circled over Long Island today striving for a new endurance flight record.

Snatches of radio conversation between the plane and the field station indicated Martin Jensen and his wife were in a conspiracy of kindness to keep from William Ulbrich, third member of the crew, details of the tragedy which befell their friendly rivals, Viola Gentry, the flying cashier, and Jack Ashcraft.

Miss Gentry, in Nassau County Hospital, with her chances for recovery doubtful, frequently called for Ulbrich, as she did when she was lifted from the wreck of her plane yesterday.

Ulbrich, knowing Miss Gentry had been injured, but not how seriously, kept grimly on with the grind upon which he and the Jensens embarked at 7:32:02 p. m. Wednesday in their effort to better the record of 172½ hours set by the Fort Worth in May.

The crash of Miss Gentry's plane, The Answer, in which Ashcraft was killed, near Old Westbury, N. Y., revealed that a stronger sentiment than the comradeship of the air existed between Ulbrich and Miss Gentry.

Three refueling operations, two of them dangerous feats out over the ocean, kept the Three Musketeers in the air through its third night.

Food and tools with which to fasten the cabin roof, which had been torn loose by the high wind, also were lowered to the plane.

Hawks Breaks Three Air Records in His Flight

New York, June 29—Three transcontinental airplane records were shattered within a day and a half, when Capt. Frank M. Hawks brought his Lockheed plane to a rather unsuccesful landing at Roosevelt Field at 1:16 a. m. today.

Capt. Hawks broke the records for the east to west flight from ocean to ocean. He broke the record of west to east flight and he established a record of 36 hours and 46 minutes 48 seconds for the round-trip from New York to Los Angeles and return.

But disaster came near overtaking the doughty captain at the end of his journey after he had flown from Los Angeles in 17 hours and 39 minutes.

The eight hundred persons who awaited his arrival at the field were dismayed to see the captain overshoot his mark and pile into a wire fence at the southern end of the field.

Cleveland Endurance Fliers Get First Supplies in Sky

Cleveland, June 29 (AP)—Pilots Roy L. Mitchell and Byron K. Newcomb were flying over the Cleveland airport today following their second successful take-off in an attempt to break the world's endurance record for planes refueled in flight. The plan was refueled at 6 a. m., almost 12 hours after the flight was started, from a plane piloted by Ernest E. Basham. The pilots signaled that all was well. Provisions also were lowered to them.

Miss Minneapolis Forced Down by Motor Trouble

Army Flier Dies of Burns and Injuries

Mineola, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Corporal Elmer Barry died today in the Nassau County Hospital from injuries and burns received yesterday when the army observation plane in which he was riding with 1st Lieut. Maxwell Balfour burst into flames and fell 2000 feet to the ground. His condition had originally been reported as fair, but he died suddenly here after midnight. Lieut. Balfour will recover.

U. S. HAS THREE OTHER DRY EMBASSIES

London, June 29 (AP)—The American embassy at London made "dry" by a recent decision of Ambassador Dawes, is not the only "dry" American territory in Europe.

The embassies at Berlin, Copenhagen and Oslo also have the same status, in the other European capitals guests at official dinners are indulged in the usual wine courses.

Only tea and coffee were served at the "house-warming" in April at the Berlin embassy, the only official entertainment yet held there. Ambassador Schurman himself lives in private quarters at his own expense and in official dinners of the past, prior to opening of the new building, served the usual wine course.

The American minister at Oslo is a total abstainer and the question of serving alcoholic liquors has never arisen there. No spirits have been served at Copenhagen, Denmark, for the last two years.

The embassy at Paris has been closed since the death of Ambassador Herrick. No liquor is served in the diplomatic chancellery, which is the only part of the embassy now functioning. At Madrid and the smaller capitals of southeastern Europe there apparently has been no disposition to dry up the official functions. The embassy at Rome had no comment to make on Ambassador Dawes' action.

Canadian Rum Export Curbed

Windsor, Ont., June 29 (AP)—H. B. Jackson, assistant chief preventive inspector, making a survey in the Great Lakes region, announces that export of liquor from Detroit river docks in the last two weeks has not been sufficient to meet the overhead costs.

The rum runners are extending their flanks, however, to Amherstburg, at one end of the Detroit river and across Lake St. Clair at the other, Jackson said.

He said four liquor boats cleared yesterday from Amherstburg, 22 others were loaded and ready for departure while nine empties were tied up. At La Salle a number of boats tied up, including eight seized by Jackson for failure to report to the customs upon their return to the Canadian shore. Unless claimed by owners they will be sold at auction.

BEE GUILTY IN CRASH SUIT

Newark, N. J., June 29 (INS)—A jury in Essex County Circuit court, Newark, placed the blame for an automobile accident upon a bee and refused to allow claims for damages amounting to $35,000.

The suit was brought by Irving Knoller and his wife, Gertrude, of Newark, for injuries to Mrs. Koller and their two-year-old son, Sanford, when a car belonging to Knoller's brother, Emanuel, crashed into a telegraph pole near Somerville, N. J.

Paris Envies Frieda

New York, June 29 (AP)—Frieda Hempel, singer, has returned from abroad with the news that her gowns attracted much favorable comment in Paris. Many people asked where she got them. She replied: "In America."

In Russia Judge Pashkov is sentenced to death with the famous bandit, Sokolov. The judge cooperated with bandits, supplying them with arms, giving them judicial protection.

But let us retain our humility. We have judges accused of cooperating with bandit-lawyers helping their schemes of robbery in connection with bankruptcy cases. It isn't quite as bad as murder, but bad enough considering our "higher civilization."

Noted Flier in Boston

Miss Eleanor Smith, holder of the altitude record for women fliers, reached Boston in a plane from New York today. She was en route to Portland, Me., accompanied by Ralph K. Smith. She will return here Monday. (Staff photo.)

READING MAY APPEAL

Former Attorney-General Arthur K. Reading at the home of his brother, Carl, at Reading, Penn., was undecided today whether he will appeal from the decision handed down by the Supreme Court.

Beyond this Reading would say nothing. The decision of the Supreme Court was handed down by Judge George A. Sanderson of the Supreme bench, and was one of the shortest decisions of this court on record.

The decision which prohibits the former State official from practising law in Massachusetts was as follows

"I find that the charges against Arthur K. Reading set forth in the 12 articles of impeachment, a printed copy of which is annexed to these proceedings brought by the Massachusetts Bar Association, have been established by the evidence. I therefore find that he is guilty of gross misconduct within the meaning the St. 1924, C. 134, and I hereby direct that an order for his disbarment be entered."

The charges were specifically his conduct in accepting large retainers from the Decima Club and from the L. & W. Acceptance Corporation while carrying on his duties as attorney-general.

ROME PLANE IN FINAL TEST

Portland, Me., June 29—The Bellanca monoplane Pathfinder, in which Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey will attempt to fly to Rome, is expected to be given a final test today.

On its first test flight, with 250 gallons of gasoline, half its capacity, in the tanks, the plane was in the air 10 minutes, while the fliers checked their instruments.

McBride Girl Was Suicide by Poison

Following an inquest Judge E. Dwight Fullerton of Dedham court reported today that Louise McBride, Wellesley College student, who died June 2, came to her death "in consequence of sodium cyanide poisoning self-administered with suicidal intent."

The report, filed with the clerk of the Superior Court, is the shortest ever made in an inquest in that district. Miss McBride, who was 18, lived in Weston, W. Va. President Ellen Pendleton of Wellesley suggested that an inferiority complex may have led to her act.

Panama Canal Sets Record for Cargoes

Washington, June 29 (AP)—The cargo tonnage carried through the Panama Canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific in May set a new record with 920,380 long tons. The heaviest in any previous month—750,641—was in October, 1925.

Band Concert at Riverside

The Boston Concert Band will give a concert at the Riverside Recreation Grounds tomorrow afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Metropolitan District Commission.

BANISHED BUT NOT SILENCED. Leon Trotsky is barred from his native land; what nation will give him sanctuary is uncertain—but to the world he gives his life story in an amazing autobiography to be published in the Boston Sunday Advertiser starting next Sunday.

Miss Eleanor Smith, holder of the woman's altitude record, arrived at Boston Airport today in a Sikorsky amphibian from Curtiss Field, Long Island, N. Y., en route to Portland, Me. She piloted the plane most of the way.

Ralph K Smith accompanied his namesake. After refueling the plane proceeded to Portland and Bar Harbor.

A Curtiss tri-motored Ford with Lowell L. Bayles at the controls planned to leave Boston for Portland later today for "Joy hopping" there today and tomorrow. Miss Smith will be one of its co-pilots in Portland. She will return to Boston Monday in the Sikorsky.

ELEANOR SMITH FLIES TO HUB

Ysaye Recovering From Amputation

Brussels, June 29 (AP)—Reassuring news came today from the bedside of Eugene Ysaye, famous Belgian violinist, whose leg was amputated after treatment for diabetes.

Madame Ysaye, formerly Miss Jeannette Dincin of Brooklyn, N. Y., said her distinguished husband was making excellent progress.

$4000 IN GEMS FOUND IN AN OLD SHOE

Eight years ago Mrs. Charles I. DeBevise, wife of Gen. DeBevise, but then the wife of Frederic E. Lewis, 2d, wealthy California rancher, lost $4000 worth of jewelry. She blamed her maid's carelessness.

A long search was made, but the jewels were not found, and the then Mrs. Lewis forgot about them in the excitement of obtaining a Paris divorce and marrying DeBevise.

Now a woman has returned the pearls, the police helping her trace them through Mrs. DeBevise's old initials.

"I bought some clothes and shoes at a rummage sale," said the woman, whose name the police refuse to reveal. "In the tip of one of the shoes were the three wrist watches and the three rings."

POSTPONE RICE DIVORCE CASE

Willimantic, Conn., June 29—In the Windham County Superior Court here the case of Edna Shorter Rice against Trenor A. Rice, a suit of divorce has been claimed for a hearing by Mrs. Rice's attorney, Samuel B. Harvey. Attorney William A. King for the defendant asked for a continuance which was granted to the September term of the Windham County Superior Court. The suit is being brought on the grounds of cruelty.

Rice was indicted for the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson on Jan. 29 last. The case against Rice was nolled in April.

Mrs. Rice announced then she would not press the suit action, which was brought in November, 1928, as she would stick by her husband for the sake of the children. The suit was renewed recently.

Mrs. Rice is living in Canterbury. Rice is conducting a poultry business and market garden on Brown ave., this city.

Japanese Cabinet Crisis Threatened

Tokyo, June 29 (AP)—There was every indication today that a sudden cabinet crisis, threatening the government of Baron Giichi Tanaka, has arisen. The public was understood to have had its origin in the report of the investigation into the death of Marshal Chang Tso-lin, defeated Chinese war lord in Manchuria in June.

The report exonerates Japan of blame for the assassination, but censures severely certain officers in the Manchurian garrison for agreeing to temporary replacement of Japanese troops by Chinese troops on the occasion of Chang's scheduled arrival at Mukden, without first consulting the home government.

Weymouth Girl $50 Scholarship Winner

Dorothea Abbott, 69 Prospect st., Weymouth, was awarded the $50 scholarship offered by the Weymouth High Alumni Association. Miss Abbott was a four-year honor student at the high school. She intends to enter Bridgewater normal school in the fall.

BRITAIN HEEDS U.S. WARNING ON ARMS PARLEY

Washington, June 29 (AP)—The rapid development of naval disarmament discussions abroad is causing concern in official circles here lest an international conference be brought about before adequate preparatory work has been done.

A suggestion that the question of reducing sea armaments be approached with caution has been advanced to the British government by the Washington administration. The latter has long held the view that likelihood of failure might be increased if a conference were called before all preliminary details had been completed.

London, June 29 (AP)—A damper has been thrown on expectations of an immediate conference of the naval powers on disarmament and naval reduction.

Both in news dispatches from Washington and in a speech by Premier MacDonald, there are indications that extensive preparation would be undertaken before a call finally is issued for a conference. The premier said that despite constant work in the direction of peace "we are not going into a peace conference without such preliminary preparation as will avoid the failure of 1927.

New Foresters Court for Wrentham, July 7

A new court of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters will be initiated in the Wrentham town hall on Sunday, July 7, at 3 p. m.

The Rev. Denis J. McGuire, formerly of Dorchester and now pastor of St. Mary's Church, Wrentham, and John Gaudet, chief ranger of St. Dominic Court, Foxboro, have been instrumental in the formation of the new court.

The ceremonies will include obligation and institution of the court and election and installation of officers. High Chief Ranger James A. Donovan of Springfield will be in charge, assisted by the St. Josephine degree staff of Dorchester.

Democratic Club to Have Outing

The members of the Jefferson Club of Watertown, recently formed Democratic organization, will hold an outing on Sunday, July 21, at the Maynard Rod and Gun Club, located off the Old Sudbury road on the way to Lake Boone, Hudson.

Assessor Edward A. Oates is chairman of the committee, which includes Selectman Edward D. Holland and others.

Ask New Parking Limit in Newton

Business men in Newton Corner have presented a petition to Mayor Childs asking that the present 30-minute parking limit at Nonantum square be extended to one hour.

The merchants contend that their business has been injured by the inadequacy of the parking limit. The Mayor will forward the petition to the board of aldermen.

Plan Triple Club Outing

The Waltham Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs of that city will hold a joint outing at Marblehead on Tuesday, July 16.

Becomes Bride

Miss Louise Lovejoy of West Newton, who became bride of Franklin T. Kurt, M. I. T. graduate.

Miss Louise Lovejoy, who graduated from Skidmore College in 1927, was married to Franklin T. Kurt by Rev. Dr. Boynton Merrill of the Second Church in Newton in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The ceremony took place in the garden at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Lovejoy on West Newton Hill, West Newton. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin T. Kurt of West Newton and graduated from M. I. T. in 1927 after being at Wesleyan College two years.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mildred H. Lovejoy, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Alice Brace of Brookline and Miss Ruth Barnes of Wallingford, Ct.

The groom was attended by Lyman E. Nivling of Newton Center, a college chum. The ushers were Robert R. Haberly of Melrose and Walter E. Lovejoy of Lincoln, a brother of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attired in a period costume of ivory French organdie with family heirloom veil. Her bridal bouquet was composed of roses, lilies of the valley and daisies.

20 Indicted in Lottery Probe

A secret indictment returned by the federal grand jury involves charges against 20 or more persons in connection with the Imperial Lottery Co. of Springfield.

Warrants are to be issued for the arrest of the indicted men, and they will be arraigned in the Federal Building in this city. Until then their names will not be divulged.

Girl Falls 35 Feet; Not Even Scratched

Newburyport, June 29 — Miss Esther Reda, 20, of this city, fell 35 feet from a third story window of the Dwight cotton mill and escaped without a scratch. Removed to the Anna Jacques hospital for observation, it was found that she suffered only from shock.

10 DELEGATES LEAVE FOR BIG CONVENTION

The Catholic Daughters of America gave 10 New England delegates to the national convention of the order a rousing sendoff when the party boarded the train in state for Galveston, Tex., at South Station today.

The Massachusetts delegation was headed by Miss Marianne Collins of Beachmont, state regent, and Miss Lillian Clark of Roxbury, vice-state regent. The other Massachusetts delegates were: Mrs. James H. Murfay, Dorchester, state treasurer; Mrs. Hugh Dougherty, Stoneham; Miss Margaret Cahill, Cambridge; Mrs. Frank Cahill, Foxboro; Mrs. Anna Ballard, Milton, state secretary, and Mrs. P. J. Scanlon, Cambridge.

Miss Mary J. Shea of Newport, R. I., state regent, lone delegate from that state, and Mrs. Margaret Desmond, state regent of New Hampshire, were also in the Boston party.

Delegates from every state in the Union except Maine will be represented at the convention, where the Catholic Daughters will take up the question of divorce and consider plans for forming a junior auxiliary to the order.

SANDINO, EXILE, ATTACKS U. S.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, June 29 (AP)—Accompanied by 25 armed men, Augustino Sandino, former Nicaraguan insurgent leader, was here today en route to exile at Merida, Yucatan. He arrived from Guatemala, having been given the government's permission to reside in Mexico.

In an interview in which he described his opposition to the established government in Nicaragua, he declared "right now American imperialism is provoking trouble among Honduras, Salvador and Guatemala, striving to create an opportunity to step in and acquire islands for the establishment of a new naval base."

Newton May Seize Bridge Right of Way

The July schedule of the Newton board of aldermen has been disrupted by the refusal of an abutter to consent to the use of his property as a right of way to a temporary footbridge to be constructed over the Charles River at Newton Lower Falls and used while the Washington st. bridge is being replaced.

Two of the three abutters have consented to the plan.

Mayor Edwin O. Childs has called a special meeting of the board for next Monday evening for a public hearing on the question of taking the right of way by eminent domain.

U. S. Officer Goes to German Army School

Washington, June 29 (AP)—For the first time since the World War the American Army has assigned a cavalry officer to study at a German military school.

Capt. Ray T. Maddocks of Fort Riley, Kan., has been ordered to report to the German cavalry school at Hanover, for a course of instruction beginning October 1.

FLAG WINNERS SAIL ON BIG ADVENTURE

San Francisco, June 29—Where the sandalled feet of mission padres trod of old, the four young American pilgrims of patriotism have journeyed on another glorious round of sightseeing, entertainment and acclamation.

Leland Stanford University opened its majestic halls of learning to the honored guests.

The home of President Hoover and the beautiful gardens about it were thrown open for their inspection.

All that the peninsula had to offer from the verdant panorama of hill and trees stretching away from El Camin Real to the silvery sheen of the Spring Valley Lakes were laid at the feet of the flag contest visitors.

And there were later events in San Francisco—a ball game for the two boys, Robert L. Sullivan and Merle Clark, a tea at the Women's City Club for the girls, Mary Mo-Gonigal and Alma Grooves—a brilliant dance aboard the Dollar liner President Monroe last night.

Yesterday—A morning of feverish packing and preparation, a visit to the battle fleet in the bay; luncheon at the officers' mess in the presidio and then—a quick afternoon, they sailed for the great adventure of all, the four months' trip around the world.

Cheers marked the passage of their carcolcade of decorated autos from the time they left the Palace Hotel for the pier where the Presidio until late afternoon when they returned for a resumption of the festivities here.

Col. Moss Lauds Frisco's Hospitality

By COL. JAMES A. MOSS

United States Army Retired, President-General of the United States Flag Association.

San Francisco, June 29 — As President-General of the United States Flag Association, I wish to express our deep and grateful appreciation of the hospitality way in which the people of San Francisco received and entertained the national flag champions.

The spirit of kindness and generosity in which Mayor Rolph received them; the elaborate program of entertainment prepared by the committee of prominent citizens of which Mr. George Hearst is chairman, the acclamation of the people as they passed through the city of San Francisco—it has all touched us very much. We had once been stationed by the president a knee of this traditional hospitality of the city of the Golden Gate, but San Francisco has outdone itself in this fine and incomparable reception of the flag champions.

The city has greeted and feted them in the same big and generous way that the nation-wide flag contest was sponsored by a native son of California, Mr. William Randolph Hearst, and his great newspapers to whom every loyal American owes a debt of gratitude for the service rendered the flag of our country in the campaign that promises to develop, into the biggest and most far reaching patriotic educational movement in the history of the country.

Lindberghs Guests of St. Louis Backers

St. Louis, Mo., June 29 (AP)—Entertained by the backers who first believed he could fly from New York to Paris, Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride today faced a program of business and of informal pleasure. They intend leaving off for Kansas City on their return by western flight this afternoon or Sunday morning.

While Lindbergh yesterday conferred with Transcontinental Air Transport officials and inspected the facilities of the line, Mrs. Lindbergh was entertained privately by Mrs. Harry Hall Knight. Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were guests at a dinner party given by Maj. William B. Robertson, a backer of the New York-to-Paris flight and the Colonel's old air mail boss.

Stimson Buys Home of Four Presidents

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Secretary Stimson has purchased as his home, "Woodley," an historic property overlooking Rock Creek Park, in Washington. Presidents have lived and historic conferences have been held.

The large southern colonial house, surrounded by spacious grounds, was the summer home of Presidents Van Buren, Tyler, Buchanan and Cleveland. It once was owned by Benjamin Stoddert, first secretary of the navy. George Washington was a frequent visitor to the spot.

Army OK's $2,000,000 Airplane Contracts

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Contracts for 209 airplane engines for the army air corps, which will cost approximately $2,000,000, have been approved by Assistant Secretary Davison.

Of these engines 180 are Pratt & Whitney "Wasps," which are 500-horsepower, super charged, air-cooled engines for use in pursuit planes; 65 are Curtiss water-cooled motors for observation planes, and 34 are Wright 300-horse power air-cooled engines for use in transport planes.

Learn Portraits on New Currency and Avoid Errors

Transporting the new small-size currency: Armored trucks conveying the new money from Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington. Suspends Sentence of Girl Mother

Miss Hazel Williamson, the 21-year-old Springfield girl, who pleaded guilty in Waltham District Court Thursday to a charge of abandoning her infant daughter in Weston last May, has been found by physicians at the Walter E. Fernald State School to have the mentality of a 10-year-old child.

Judge Cunniff of Waltham has suspended her sentence to the Sherburn Reformatory on the condition that her relatives provide for her care in a State institution.

Mabel Farnsworth Bremer Joins June Brides Today

Distinctive Society Group Attends Her Marriage to Dr. Myles Pierce Baker in Rustic New Hampshire Church

AS THE ORGAN'S MELLOW STRAINS PENETRATE THE rustic Dublin, N. H., Emmanuel Church late this afternoon, another will be added to the ever-so-long June roster of pulchriudinous brides. At four o'clock wedding bells will chime the eternal pledge of happiness for Miss Mabel Farnsworth Bremer of Chestnut st. and Dr. Myles Pierce Baker, a member of the staff of the Massachusetts General Hospital and son of Prof. and Mrs. George Pierce Baker of New Haven, Ct.

In white satin lace, with tulle veil and orange blossoms will the statuesque Miss Mabel take her vows, her two sisters, Mrs. Henry H. Faxon of Brookline and Mrs. George Pierce Baker, Jr., of Cambridge, gowned in flowered green chiffon, the sole attendants. The bride is to take leave from Yonder Farm, the spacious country estate of her mother, Mrs. S. Parker Bremer, a recent arrival from a winter's enjoyment o f continental capitals.

SMALL BUT DISTINCTIVE IS the gathering to be but of the number several are important out of town guests. Dr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer and their daughter, Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Eliot, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hopkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence V. Burrage and their daughter, Alice, and Miss Sarah Bremer, will motor to Dublin to be on time for the summery nuptials. George Pierce Baker, Jr., is to serve as his brother's best man. In the squad of ushers are John and Edwin O. Baker of New York, Dr. Henry Faxon of Brookline, Dr. John Howard of Baltimore, Geoffrey Smith of Philadelphia, Mitchell Gratwick of Buffalo, John Martin of Cambridge, Richard Higgins, Frank Crocker and John White, all of Boston. Miss Bremer is a member of Junior League and Vincent Club.

A THOUSAND INVITATIONS have been issued for the debutante tea tomorrow, which Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crane, Jr., of Chicago are giving for their daughter, Florence, at their summer estate, Castle Hill, Ipswich. For many years have the Cranes been coming to the North Shore to spend the warm weather months under the East's natural canopy of azure blue and cooling waters. But this year Miss Florence will take especial advantage of the offering of an Ipswich summer and entertain the bon tons of the neighboring summer colonies at the first debutante affair of the North Shore and the second of the season. From four until six, motors will roll up to the outer portals of the sumptuous Castle Hill, congratulate the charming Florence on her honors, and wish her well for future deb activities. She came, out last winter in the Windy City.

THE SEASON IS LATE IN getting started at the Eastern Yacht Club, Marblehead, it seems. The place was actually deserted yesterday, save for a few who are stopping there. But next week the most luxurious craft of the world will enter the waters of Marblehead Harbor, remaining there until the August regatta of national fame. The yachts of the Morgans, Astors and Vanderbilts are expected the first of the week and then the social activities will pick up in importance and size. But right now all is serene and quiet, the youngsters only taking to sailing with former avidity of their elders.

OF the restful quiet of Marblehead, Mrs. James Cunningham Gray took her fill and when the information contained in a magazine failed to occupy her complete attentions, the whereabouts of a vivacious, brown Pekinese, Cochin by name, did. The Grays are at the Yacht Club early because of Mr. Cunningham's position as chairman of the regatta committee. There on the grass I spied that dark-eyed and delightful Katherine Cunningham Gray whose voice is an inspiring source of beauty and rich quality, reluctantly forsaking the water she loved so dearly in younger days. She was sipping cool and refreshing lemonade, having just returned from confining Boston where she is studying voice culture. Three or four days a week does she willingly give to the furtherance of her promising singing, for Miss Katherine has hopes of the concert stage in the Fall. There never was a more able sailor-girl than this magnetic young lady at the Eastern Yacht Club but her prowess at the wheel is lost this season for she is ardently devoted to her profession. She is a linguist of no mean ability and sings in five tongues, I am told. Not many more weeks will roll around, however, before Mrs. Gray and her talented daughter, take leave for a few months in the mountains.

WHEN CONSTANCE PERCIVAL, the debutante daughter of the David Percivals of Commonwealth ave., isn't pursuing the course of the plus four; she is whacking with punch and determination the tennis ball. The game of the racquet was hers yesterday, and after two hard sets she and Mrs. Edwin A. Shuman Jr., retired to the Eastern Yacht Club veranda for a long, cool drink. Mrs. Shuman was Barbara E. Smythe only a few months ago, before she married the son of the Beacon st. Shumans.

THE OFFICIAL APPEARANCE of the coach recently purchased by Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church will be made next Wednesday at Newport when it becomes part of the parade that day for the celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. To the charming Muriel goes the honor of being the first feminine member of her family to take up coaching, long a Vanderbilt accomplishment of exclusive success. She purchased this four-horse affair, which formerly made the run between Tarrytown and New York, some time ago, coaching and training at her Newport estate four footers of the special job. One of the finest private stables in the country is her possession and Mrs. Church is devoting much of her time to the raising of thoroughbreds.

CONSTANCE PERCIVAL KATHERINE CUNNINGHAM GRAY

Among the debutantes who find relaxation and pleasure at that exclusive Marblehead institution, the Eastern Yacht Club, are Katherine Cunningham Gray and Constance Percival. Both take a keen interest in yachting and other sports at the summer colony.

22 Injured as Bus Goes In Ohio Ditch

Youngstown, O., June 29 (AP)— Twenty-two persons were injured, seven seriously, when a Nevin line bus bound from Pittsburgh to Detroit struck a culvert and turned over in a seven-foot ditch several miles south of here early today.

Two drivers were being held for investigation at a hospital by Sheriff Adam Stone of Mahoning county, the injured may not live, hospital authorities said.

300,000 Peepers See Lady Godiva Ride

Coventry, Eng., June 29 (AP)— This old English city was a city of 300,000 Peeping Toms today as a beautiful golden-haired girl rode on a white charger through the heart of the town attired only in flesh-colored tights.

It was a holiday pageant and procession of Lady Godiva, enacted for the benefit of the Coventry Hospital.

Hundreds of Americans and other tourists packed the hotels and crowded the streets to watch the ancient story of the Saxon lady who rode naked through the streets of Coventry about 1040 A.D., to gain from her husband, Leofric, Earl of Mercia, the remission of oppressive taxes on his people, again unfolded in picturesque pageantry.

Miss Muriel Mellerup, the modern Lady Godiva, faced approximately 900,000 eyes and hundreds of cameras without flinching, but there was an undertone of criticism of the whole program in some quarters.

Some persons disapproved of the picture on the outside of the Coventry official program as well as the pageant itself. This showed a rude woman astride a white charger. But the presence of numerous clergymen, councillors, aldermen and other dignitaries silenced opposition

Godiva's horse, "Peaceful," was led by Benedictine nuns and headed a procession four miles long illustrating episode after episode in the history of ancient Coventry, including Mary, Queen of Scots, Sir John Falstaff and the gun powder plots.

MISS EARHART IN BOSTON

Amelia Earhart is back in Medford, her home city, today for the first time since she departed in a blaze of glory on the evening of July 10 last year, when neighbors accorded her a triumphant reception in honor of her flight across the Atlantic.

Miss Earhart is here to be bridesmaid for her sister, Grace Muriel Earhart, who this afternoon becomes the bride of Henry Albert Morrisey of Vine st., Medford, in the Grace Episcopal Church.

Since she became famous as the first woman to cross the Atlantic in a plane, Amelia and her mother have resided in New York city.

Home Today

Amelia Earhart was back in Medford today for the wedding of her sister, Grace, to Henry Albert Morrissey.

Clubs Aid Homemaking

THE number of women home demonstration agents should be increased and the General Federation of Women's Clubs are confident of such accomplishment in the fall.

"The need for such instruction and help in housekeeping and homemaking by rural community women is tremendous and to these out of the way places do the executives of the Federation hope to reach with their future program.

Of the work done along these lines in the past, the department of the Alabama State Federation of Women's Clubs has been outstanding and the results of the work convincingly borne out in the statement of Mrs. M. L. Toomer of Auburn, chairman of the home demonstration cooperation. She lists the remarkable achievements to three things.

"First, the home demonstration agents and specialists are well trained and tremendously interested in their work; second, the eagerness of the rural woman to take advantage of her opportunity to become more efficient, is evident. She realizes that only with efficiency will there come time for the more spiritual pursuits that lead to greater happiness; and third, there is the increased interest and co-operation of the Federated club women."

According to Mrs. Toomer, 18,326 women and girls have enrolled in home demonstration work.

Active in the promotion of this work for the Federation is Mrs. Eugene W. Lawson of Oklahoma.

Figures usually mean very little, but to inspress the importance of Alabama's progress in this field, we offer them.

Mrs. Toomer says:

"Forty-one counties covered by the 41 home demonstration agents have included 5187 in their nutrition activities. Fruit and vegetables canned or preserved by women and girls, numbered 852,526. Enrolled in clothing work they had 2321 women and 4325 girls. Women and girls registered in home management and house furnishing totaled 6080. Kitchens planned and rearranged were 1385.

"Marketing has been one of the most outstanding projects among women. Thirteen curb markets were organized in 1927, eight in 1928 and four prior to this. Club-women sponsor markets, are purchasers and publicity agents."

In its efforts to raise the standards of education, health, child welfare, home making, conservation and all other things that tend toward the betterment of life, model county contests are proposed by Mrs. Toomer.

BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUBS

Dr. Margaret Elliott of Ann Arbor, Michigan, chairman of personal research of the National Federation is to present an outstanding feature at the convention at Mackinac Island, Michigan, July 8. She will make public the results of a vocational survey of the Federation which the University of Michigan has just completed Startling facts about business women's problems, their earning capacity, the reliance of dependents upon them, and their ability to save money enough to protect themselves in their old age have been disclosed by the survey. Miss Elliott will give the first complete analysis of these facts, and since the survey is the most extensive ever made in this field she will undoubtedly throw much new light upon the whole question of the feminine invasion of the business world.

Show How to "Beat Bank" at Roulette

Montreal, June 29 (AP)—The Montreal Star says Mayor Houde has sent invitations to municipal employes to be present at City Hall July 2, when a "roulette expert" will demonstrate how to beat the bank. "It will be shown, the invitation reads, "that roulette, which makes so many victims and causes the financial ruin of so many persons at Monte Carlo, for instance, may be easily defeated and mastered."

Southern Cross Off Again

Singapore, Straits Settlement, June 29 (AP)—The airplane Southern Cross, with Capt. Charles Kingsford Smith and three companions aboard, left today in continuation of its flight from Sydney, N. S. W., to England. The next stop probably will be at Singora (Muang Sawing Kla), Siam.

W. T. Ince to Wed Girl, 16

Los Angeles, June 29 (INS)—William T. Ince, 39, son of the late Thomas H. Ince, pioneer film producer, and Ada Williams, who was "Miss Florida" of 1927, will marry July 7. The girl gave her age as 15.

35 TO 60 IS THE BEST AGE

Philadelphia, June 29—Henry Ford, in the July issue of The Ladies' Home Journal, says that he should prefer, if he could make the choice, to have all his employes betwen 35 and 60 years of age.

"For then," the automobile manufacturer adds, "we should have stable and experienced force. We would not care how much over 60 the men were so long as they could do their work.

"Under no circumstances would we have a working force made up of only young men," Ford says. "It is absolutely necessary, in order to get the work through, to have a solid framework of older and more experienced men who know exactly what they are doing.

"It is not to be expected that a man of 70 will have as much endurance as one of 25. It is not at all necessary that he should have, for by the time a man has reached 70 he ought to have something a great deal more valuable than physical strength.

"The records of the employment department show that the work which calls for endurance is best served as a rule by men who are 40 and over. Younger men seem to tire of jobs of this kind rather quickly and want to be transferred to lighter work.

"Having lived a number of years," Ford says, "is a great advantage to anyone if those years have brought a background of experience. It is usual to associate age with years only because so many men and women somewhere along in what is called middle age stop trying. They let themselves be old."

Percy Jenkins of Harvard to Wed

Clinton, June 29—Percy Jenkins of Quincy, a four-letter athlete at Harvard in 1924, is engaged to wed Miss Madeline Child of Clinton, according to an announcement made by the family here.

Jenkins, who formerly lived in Clinton, is now sales manager in the New York office of the Wickwire-Spencer Steel Corporation. The ceremony is to be in the Autumn.

Cost of Living Survey in Holyoke

The commission on the necessaries of life at the request of the Chamber of Commerce will make a survey of the cost of living in Holyoke. Prices prevailing there will be compared with the average for the state and the commission hopes to make suggestions as to where they may be pared through changes in methods.

INSURANCE MEN AGAIN ELECT ALLEN

Manchester, N. H., June 29—Two hundred New Hampshire life insurance leaders, salesmen and guests attended the 1929 sales congress of the New Hampshire Life Underwriters' Association at the Manchester Country Club.

The session attracted many nationally known insurance men, who were on the program as speakers, including Lewis B. Hendershot of the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn.; Edward M. McMahon, insurance trust officer of the Equitable Trust Company of New York; Roger E. Hull, director of the National Association and Willard L. Hamilton, vice-president of the Prudential Life Insurance Co.

Paul F. Clark of Boston, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, was scheduled as the principal guest of the day. Insurance Commissioner John E. Sullivan of Concord was one of the speakers. City Solicitor Thomas J. Boit, as the representative of Mayor Arthur E. Moreau, welcomed the insurance men.

Chris A. Allen, president of the State association, was re-elected; William Johnson of Nashua was elected vice-president, and J. Emile Houle of Manchester, secretary-treasurer.

Commissioner Sullivan traced the origin of insurance. He said that, although insurance did not start in this country, it was here that its growth and soundness were achieved, until today 71 per cent of all business in all companies is in force in the United States.

He said it was the duty of the insurance men to cleanly and faithfully represent life insurance. Sullivan likened the life insurance business to a high profession and said that the insurance men are to be compared to doctors.

YOUTH DROWNS IN CHARLES

Paul Barrett, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael W. Barrett of 33 West st., Newton, was drowned in the Charles river while bathing with a group of companions near the Sheaf st. bridge at the Watertown line.

There is a swift current in that part of the river and as Barrett could not swim he was pulled beneath the water and his body dragged nearly a mile. Calls were relayed through the Newton and Watertown police to the Metropolitan district police after Barrett's companions spread the alarm, and a squad from the latter headquarters at Riverside, under direction of Lt. McLeod, dragged the river for more than five hours before the boy's body was brought to the surface.

HUB MILK PRICE RAISE PLEASES

Montpelier, Vt., June 29—Gratification was expressed at the office of the Department of Agriculture when officials were informed of the action of the New England Milk Producers' Association in increasing the price paid farmers by Boston milk companies from eight to nine cents a quart, effective July 1.

The price of milk during the winter months was nine cents a quart but early this summer an effort was made by Boston dealers to reduce this price, as is customary during the summer. This was opposed by cooperative creameries and the Department of Agriculture which did not believe such a decrease warranted in view of conditions.

Weather Cancels Los Angeles Trip

Lakehurst, N. J., June 29—The scheduled flight of the Navy dirigible Los Angeles to New England was cancelled because of storms along the coast, Lieut. Commander H. V. Wiley, skipper of the craft, had planned to take off for a cruise of 24 hours or more.

REALTORS RAP UNETHICAL PRACTICES

In a set of standards adopted at the final business meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Bonds the delegates clearly defined unethical practices in the appraisal of real estate.

The realtors also adopted a resolution urging the repeal of legislation attaching rights of property ownership. They extended thanks to the Boston real estate men for the success of the convention.

Leonel P. P. Reaume of Detroit, who was nominated the new president of the organization, was unanimously elected with the other officers recommended by the nomination committee. In a brief speech Reaume declared that the next few years will be vastly important to real estate men because of the changes that are taking place.

It was announced that the total registration at the convention was 1925 members. The prize for the delegation having the most members at the gathering from a distant city, went to Winston-Salem, N. C. In the appraising contests the first prizes went to the Chicago Real Estate Board for appraising the Windermere apartment building and to the Houston, Tex., board for its figure on an industrial plant in Cambridge.

In the advertising contest the prize for brokerage advertising went to Walter Channing, Inc., of Boston.

A committee, headed by Henry A. Babcock of Chicago, which has been working for the past two years on standards of practice for realtor appraisers and appraisal committees, filed and extended report with the convention yesterday which was unanimously accepted.

It set forth that the appraiser in his professional capacity should be absolutely disinterested and have no pecuniary or other interest in the property appraised or in the outcome of his appraisal.

"An appraiser may also conduct a brokerage or renting real estate; but in his capacity of appraiser he should be entirely uninfluenced by such other activities," the report states. "It is of particular importance that he be uninfluenced by the effect his appraisal might have on any other business activity in which he is engaged."

WINS $17,500 AFTER 11 YEARS

Concord, N. H., June 29—The Supreme Court handed down its sixth decision in the damage suit of Arthur J Watkins of this city against the Boston & Maine Railroad, a case which also has had four jury trials and a squad from the latter headquarters at Riverside, under direction of Lt. McLeod, dragged the river for more than five hours before the boy's body was brought to the surface.

Watkins, who was fireman on the locomotive drawing a special train of St. Paul's students from Concord to New York on June 30, 1917, was injured in the line of duty by being thrown from his engine, and brought suit for damages.

BOYS FIND MAIL BAG IN WOODS

Ansonia, Ct., June 29—The second mail pouch containing checks and other first-class mail matter, that was stolen by Lake Burgess, mail messenger, from a train ago Wednesday, was found by four boys on their way to establish a camp in the woods near the Ansonia-Derby line. The pouch had been hidden beneath some brush. The contents were intact, officials officials said.

Wyatt Latowski, 12, of 19 High st., carried the seek to the Postoffice Building. "I guess you have been looking for this," he said to a clerk at one of the stamp windows. The boy was given a check for $25, the reward offered by the postal authorities.

The other mail pouch was recovered last Sunday in Beaver st. It contained nearly $70,000 in currency. Burgess has confessed to the theft of the pouch and is held in bail of $5500 for trial in the United States District Court.

Manchester, Mass., June 29—The final match in the women's golf tournament for a trophy offered by Mrs. R. C. Curtis were played at the Essex County Club. Miss Margaret Curtis defeated Miss M. Post, 4 and 2.

Ringling Buys Famous 'Descent From Cross'

London, June 28—John Ringling, American circus owner, has acquired one of the world's most famous "old masters," Rembrandt's "Descent From The Cross."

The last survivor of the five Ringling brothers to leave their first circus in a Baraboo barn in the early eighties with no performers save themselves and one sick wildcat to serve as menagerie, competed with Europe's most noted art buyers at Christie's.

The painting shows, in twilight the body of Christ at the foot of the cross. Joseph of Arimathea holds him in his arms, while the Virgin Mary, wearing a scarlet head dress mournfully over the crucified body. John the Evangelist stands weeping in the background. Magdalen leans against the cross and looks sorrowfully on the scene; in the background are the buildings of Jerusalem.

Highest price on the sale was reached when an anonymous purchaser bought for $43,050 the "Portrait of John Mordaunt First Earl of Peterborough," by Sir Anthony Van Dyck.

"The Dutton Family Group," by John Zoffany, was bought by H. H. Farr, New York for $36,750.

BOY SWIMMER RESCUED FROM THE CHARLES

Going down while 45 feet off shore in the Charles river at Magazine Beach, 13-year-old Kenneth Tukes of Ivy st., Back Bay, was rescued from drowning today by John Doughty, 18, of Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge.

After he was taken ashore, resuscitated and removed to Cambridge City Hospital, the rescued boy was found to be suffering from immersion and his name was placed on the danger list.

Young Doughty was swimming a short distance away from the Boston boy when he suddenly sank in midstream. Doughty dove after him, brought him to the surface and after a struggle got him ashore.

Two policemen performed the work of resuscitation. They are Francis B. Maguire of the metropolitan force and Paul J. Murphy of the Cambridge department.

Extradition of Irish Fair Head Is Refused

Police Inspector William E. Le Blanc of the Boston bureau of criminal investigation declared that his department was in receipt of information from the office of Cedarhurst, N. Y., that the warrant sent them from Massachusetts for the arrest of Fireman Benjamin Alias Benny Ryan, was not sufficient to warrant his extradition to this commonwealth.

'FAKE SURGEON' DELAY FREED ON BAIL

"Dr." Jesse Schneider who according to police, performed 11 operations in a Back Bay hospital, although he did not possess a medical degree or state license, pleaded not guilty in Roxbury court today to a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

He furnished bail of $500 when hearing was continued until July 20 by Judge Dana Todd.

Schneider was arrested at the hospital by Sergt. Frank Sanborn of the State Police. He is charged with conducting, it is said, an illegal clinic for profit, which took place, in the estate of William Searles, New York society man, discussing his garden beds, bridesmaids' windows and doors and heating up his caretaker, Robert Dalbin.

On complaint of neighbors police sent a riot squad to the Searles estate and found Clarke on his back in the tunnel garden and Norton in an auto with a woman.

Norton and Clarke had come to Dayton to spend the summer at the Norton summer estate in Tokeneke

BAY STATE BOY TO HUSTLE FOR EDISON PRIZE

"I am going to do my very best to win first prize in the Edison contest and I am very confident I will make good," declared Fred erick Ireland, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ireland of 209 22 Garden st., Cambridge, to Governor Frank G. Allen at the State House today, where Ireland had gone to accept the good wishes of the Governor.

Ireland was selected yesterday as the Massachusetts representative in the scholar-hip contest conducted by Thomas A. Edison to find his successor. Ireland, a graduate of Groton school in this years class, was described by the selection committee as a young man of remarkable insight in scientific matters from both a theoretical and practical standpoint," and one having the elements of genius.

Governor Allen congratulated young Ireland as did Lieutenant-Governor William Youngman. Governor Allen told young Ireland that it was a pleasure for him to congratulate the young Cambridge man on being Massachusetts selection in the Edison contest, and in behalf of the Commonwealth he presented the young man with a gold pin with the insignia of the Commonwealth.

Young Ireland said that when the Edison questionnaire came out two years ago he gave it careful study. He said that he played around the State House last evening awaiting the results of the committee in Cambridge, which is nearby to the State House, he said, "so I thought I would wait and see who won. My first thought was that who ever won I would immediately go to their home and congratulate the winner.

"I was very much surprised on winning, although I did study hard. I am going to work hard to win out in the final and I have very much confidence. I know that the competition will be keen but I will do my very best in order that Massachusetts will not regret sending me to compete against other young men of the country."

29 States Represented in Edison Contest

Orange, N. J., June 29 (INS)—With the entrance of six more youths into the contest being conducted by Thomas A. Edison to select the most promising American boy, the total of states represented in the competition reached a total of 29 today.

Washington, the first Pacific coast state to be entered, is represented by Wilbur R. Huston of Ft. Madison, it was announced at Edison's home today. Other new entrants, Massachusetts representative, Frederick Ireland of Cambridge, are Rhode Island, represented by Norman Farrington of Pawtucket; Pennsylvania, represented by James Shackle-Ford, Gainesville, Charles Witcom of Unstilla, Georgia, represented by Harold William Davis of Rutland, John Todd Cowe of Burlington, all from Vermont, and North Carolina, represented by D. Allen Harrell of Scotland Neck.

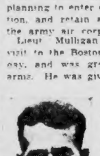
BOSTON YOUTH MAKES GOOD AS FLIER

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

Boston's newest pursuit pilot, Lieut. Gerard F. Mulligan, who has just been graduated from the army flying schools at Brooks and Kelley Fields, Texas, and who graduated from Boston College in 1926, is planning to enter commercial aviation, and retain a commission in the army air corps reserve.

Lieut. Mulligan paid his first visit to the Boston Airport yesterday, and was greeted with open arms. He was given a ship to fly by the Curtiss Flying Service.



Lieut. Mulligan

Gerfer selected pursuit work at Kelley field, which is the advanced flying school in Texas. He doesn't expect to go looping and zooming all over Boston's skylines, but hopes to settle down to a lot of serious commercial flying.

Lieut. Mulligan lives with his folks at 32 St. Margaret's st., Dorchester, and has lived all his life in Boston.

Whitin Whitall, of Worcester, dropped in in his brother Jimmie's Seimen's engined Waco, to attend the monthly meeting of the State aviation board. According to Whitin, who is an amateur aircraft inspector in the Worcester district, no pilot was listed on the books for a visit to the official "carpet."

Whitin said things were running smoothly up in Worcester, and that he expected to sell his Fairchild cabin monoplane and buy a sporting Waco. The sport-wing Waco is a fast Whirlwind motored job, that performs like a pursuit plane.

The Cape Cod Glider school has extended invitations to various pilots, aviation devotees and members of the press to visit the glider camp at Provincetown. And if you try the various gliders. We have been selected as one of the members of the newspaper to visit the camp, and we promise not to try to loop the glider off the ground, if such happens to get off mother earth. According to Dan Beckford, who is handing out invitations, gliding is one of the greatest thrills in flying, and is one that everybody will have a good time.

Col. Mackie

Col. Dick Mackie, of Colonial, the looping king, asked what if a looping record for glides was, and stated that he might want to take a "gull" over the jumps like he did the fleet biplane.

Paul Herman, pilot for the Curtiss Flying Service, took Skyward Howard Foster, Jr., of Somerville, up in a Cessna to try to cure his deafness. Paul climbed the Cessna to 12,000 feet, and then pushed the nose down into a steep dive. Rocketing down from more than two miles in the air, Herman pulling the fastest dive on record at the local port. It took him 30 minutes to get to his ceiling, an' five minutes to dive to 800 feet, play around in a few more dives, strafe the water a bit, and then come in and land.

Paul stated that he never had a faster dive, and that young Foster was one of the best passengers he ever took into the air. While Paul was working on the controls, young Foster was clapping his hands with glee. And he liked it.

At the bottom of the dive, with the motor turning 2100 revolutions per minute, the airspeed indicator showed 185 miles per hour.

Another new ship visited the Boston Airport, this one being a Challenger biplane, powered with a 150-horsepower Wright J-6 engine, and flown for demonstration purposes by D. M. Hackman, of the Fairchild Company, Farmingdale, N. Y., with A. K. Rapeljer, of the sales department as passenger. The little ship was shown off to good advantage, and then she went to Portland to land at the Brownmeter field for further demonstration.

The new hangars of Curtiss and Skyways are rapidly nearing completion, and the boys are looking more and more fondly at the buildings. East Coast Aircraft Sales Corp. and Colonial Air Transport have their new hangars well under way, and before long the airport will present an entirely different appearance in the flying public. Bay State's office building is slated for a move today, and Granvill Bros.' movable shop was shifted to the rear of the army hangars. Things are humming under Capt. Edson's direction, and it won't be very long before the new Boston Airport appears. Every day some new part of the filled area is levelled off and cindered and pretty soon the port will take its rightful place in the network of nation-wide airports.

The Distinguished American Pictured In This Puzzle Is .....
(Write Name of Distinguished American Here.)

The first week's test in the novel Distinguished American Crossword puzzle series which is being conducted by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, ends with the publication of Puzzle No. 7 in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser will give cash awards totaling $200 each week for the best solutions of each week's puzzles according to the rules of the Tests.

Today puzzle No. 6 is printed. The novel part of these puzzles is that crossword fans now have a chance to turn their pastime into profit and earn money for their vacations this summer.

This is in answer to Miss Dorothy P. of Baldwinsville: Yes, you can copy the puzzles on a separate sheet of paper. But be sure to number each puzzle and write in the name of the distinguished American whose picture appears in the center of each puzzle. If you want to cut out the pictures from the puzzle in the paper and paste it in the center of the copy of the puzzle that, too, is permissible.

In answer to M. P. M. of Northampton: The sentence which each contestant must submit with each set of solutions shall be composed of words as few or as many as you choose. But the words must appear in the solution of crossword puzzle No. 7, which will appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. There is no restriction against using the same word more than once in the sentence providing that it appears in the solution. The sentence, however, must be complete and must make sense.

Crossword fans should read the rules carefully.

The second series of Distinguished American Crossword Puzzles will start with Puzzle No. 1 (second series) in the Boston Evening American, July 1. If you failed to join the first week's test join the second week. The $200 cash awards will be given each week.

ARRAIGN PRISON CAMP RIOTERS IN LOWELL

Dr. W. Warren Stearns, new commissioner of corrections, was in Tewksbury today investigating the near-riot at the State prison camp while six inmates, arrested by police summoned on a riot call* were being arraigned in Lowell on charges of drunkenness and assault and battery.

The house which precipitated the free-for-all is believed to have been buried somewhere on the prison grounds, Deputy Commissioner Edward C. H. Bagley declared today.

All of the prisoners who took part in the fight were transfers from Deer Island with one exception, James Fitzpatrick, who was sent to Tewksbury from the East Cambridge House of Correction. The Deer Island transfers were Frank C. Burke, Andrew Bathe, Gustave D Gelia, Alfred d'Angelo and Joseph Williams.

Tewksbury police and State troopers from Reading and Lowell were summoned to quell the disturbance.

RUDOLPH WELD GETS $177,528

Washington, June 29—Overassessment of income taxes for the years 1918-1921, inclusive, totalling $177,528.21, in favor of Rudolph Weld, Boston, has been announced by the treasury department. Refunds totalling $49,017.71 are to be paid Weld by the treasury, the balance of the over-assessment having been withheld by the taxpayer pending decision of his appeal for abatement.

The over-assessments were determined by years as follows:

1918, $20,043.29; 1919, $26,817.11; 1920, $117,605.45; 1921, $3,062.19. Total, $177,528.21.

In announcing the over assessments the treasury said that $174,-961.72 due to decreases in the amounts reported as the taxpayer's distributive shares of the net incomes of several partnerships incomes and the distributive shares of the members have been redetermined after thorough examination by revenue agents of the partnerships' books and records. The decrease is due principally to the fact that the income of one of the partnerships was seriously overstated through failure to include in its calendar year returns the full operating losses which it sustained during the same accounting periods in the operation of a foreign branch of its business.

A reduction in the taxable gain on the sale of property due to correcting an error in stating the actual cost subsequent to March 1, 1913, used as the basis for determining the gain ceases an over assessment of $2248.83. An increase in the reduction for interest paid on indebtedness to include items overlooked when the returns were filed causes an over assessment of $317.65.

Berlin Communists Held for Attacks

Berlin, June 29 (AP)—A number of Communists were under arrest here today after sporadic attacks in isolated sections on members of Nationalist societies on their way home from demonstrations protesting the "war guilt lie." One "steel helmet" member was an severely injured he had to go to a hospital.

Breslau, Germany, June 29 (AP)—Communist opposition to demonstrations marking the war guilt charge of the treaty of Versailles expressed itself in encounters with police who protested their wearing the forbidden red front fighting uniforms.

RUNAWAY GIRL KEEPS MUM

Worcester, June 29—Miss Miriam Turner, 19, of New Orleans La., who was arrested here as a runaway by State Trooper Avedian, when arraigned in court today, refused to give any account of herself other than to proclaim her innocence. Her case was continued until July 1. She appeared in court in a shoulderless gown cut high-heeled pumps in contrast to the long trousers and tan's shoes she wore when apprehended.

She confided to the arresting officer that she had hitched-hiked from New Orleans to Dallas, Tex., where she worked two weeks and then hitch hiked in one week's time from Dallas to Worcester.

DAVIS MAY RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Washington, June 23—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, will leave President Hoover's Cabinet and run for Governor of Pennsylvania if the people show they want him and if he is assured of "an honest count," he said in an interview here.

He wants no "back-room nominations by the gang, and will not take part in nomination, he said.

Whether he will run depends upon a survey now being made in Pennsylvania by his friends. The primary is next May.

Leaps to Death From Third Story Window

Fall River, June 29—Henry Murphy, 67, 200 Tripp st., died at the Fall River General Hospital as the result of injuries received when he jumped out of a third-story window.

Honest Woodsman Passes Up Chance for New Wardrobe

Thomas Burnett, Saugus woodchopper, almost had a regular Prince of Wales wardrobe today. Felling trees in a patch of timber at the edge of the town, Tom found a bundle containing two dozen brand new imported English shirts. Right then, Tom might have congratulated himself upon his luck and called it a day. He didn't, however. He hunted around and found more stuff, including a woman's new leather jacket and a score or more of jewelry buxes—empty. Thinks, that was business for the police. Tom reported his find, and was sharply cross questioned by way of reward. The goods were stolen from a Cambridge store, the authorities finally informed him. Back in the woods went the shirts and the jacket. Tom, unthanked and still clad in denim, resumed his chopping.

3 MORE NAMED ON FARM BOARD

Washington, June 29—President Hoover has appointed three members of the new farm board. All three represent co-operative organizations, and were recommended by farm organizations and farm co-operatives. The President hopes to complete the membership of eight next week so that the board can organize and be in operation by August 1.

The appointments are:

James C. Stone, Lexington, Ky., president of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, which does an annual business of $50,000,000. He is a director of the Fayette, Ky., National Bank, the Joint State Land Bank of Kentucky and the owner of livestock farms.

C. B. Denman, president of the National Livestock Producers' Association, which operates in 12 states with an annual business of $150,000,000. He is the owner of livestock farms near Farmington, Mo., and one of the most active co-operative officials.

Carl Williams of Oklahoma City, Okla., editor of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman, and an active force in many co-operative organizations, such as the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' Association, and the American Cotton Growers Exchange, Southwest Wheat Growers' Association.

POULTRYMAN'S BODY IS FOUND

New Boston, N. H., June 29—The body of Frank Daniels, 47, one of the largest poultry raisers in this section of the State, who had been missing since last Saturday, was found floating near the shore of an isolated pond near the Weare line by Constable Page Wilson and a posse of 12 men. A livid scar on the man's head gave rise to a foul play theory. It was discarded by the finding of $212 on his person and the possibility that he may have been struck with lightning.

Daniels had lived alone for many years on his little farm, about one mile from the village on the Joe English Hill rd.

According to the man's brother, he was to have gone to Marlboro, Mass., on Sunday to bring back several relatives for the summer, missing since last Saturday, was Sunday or the day afterwards, the relatives raised the alarm.

Medical Examiner Jules O. Gagnon of Manchester pronounced death accidental after a cursory examination. The scar on the man's head led him to the opinion that the farmer might well have been struck by lightning during an electrical storm known to have descended on the vicinity about the time Daniels is believed to have gone fishing.

Taken From Cot to Tell of Auto Case

Taken from a bed in the Massachusetts General Hospital, Heyman Cardwell, 41, of Providence, R. I., was arrested by the Greenfield police, early today. He is wanted to answer automobile violation charges, according to the Boston police.

Bardwell reported at the Massachusetts General Hospital yesterday, stating he was ill, but no diagnosis had been made reported ailments up to the time he was arrested. He gave addresses at Westminster st. and Bridge st., in Providence.

Boston Driver Held for Hitting Child

Nashua, N. H., June 29—Marietta Chagnon, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Chagnon, was critically injured when she was struck by an auto operated by Luigi Ferulo, 27, Hanover ave., Boston. The girl had just stepped from a street car when the car driven by Ferulo approached. The machine skidded to the left, hit the girl, then crashed into a pole. The girl was taken to Memorial Hospital and the driver of the car was arrested charged with reckless driving.

FOE OF 'BOSSY' QUITS FORCE

Newburyport, June 29—Patrolman Edward K. Gove, tendered his resignation to Mayor Gills. The mayor accepted.

The resignation followed a heated reprimand by City Marshal McLean, who charged the patrolman with conduct unbecoming a police officer, and gave him his choice of ceasing such conduct, or resigning, the marshal says.

Patrolman Gove has had more or less trouble since becoming a police officer. Promoted in December, 1925, from the reserve force to be a patrolman by Mayor Nelson just before his term ended, he was demoted by Mayor Gillis shortly after taking office.

FORMER SEC'Y OF CHURCHES IN BOSTON

Dr. Scudder

The Rev. Dwight Scudder, D.D., for several years executive secretary for the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, now is headed toward Russia. Since leaving Boston, after a sentiment successful, Dr. Scudder settled in Claremont, Cal. For a number of years he has been desirous of comparing present-day Russia with the Russia he knew 20 or 30 years ago, when a missionary in Japan.

"I believe there is a great deal of hope and inspiration in Russia," he said this week, when seen at his brother's home in Winchester.

While the doctor sees much to spell discouragement in the world today, he declared that, after his recent trip around the world, he is full of hope and faith.

"To my way of thinking," he explained, "Christianity became bankrupt and discredited when the great war was fought between Christian nations. I have about discarded the name Christian for myself and now may be said to belong to the church of the world, meeting regularly in the temple of human brotherhood, the pews of which reach around the earth.

"I know what an appearance of chaos much of the world seems to be in, and especially the young people, who are no longer content to take advice from their elders, but must try for themselves. I believe they will keep on trying until they come back to the old fundamentals from which society rests. Already there is a swing back to many of the good old family customs."

In regard to missionaries, Dr. Scudder, who has had long experience in foreign fields, believes a new day has arrived. "The time is fast coming," he explained, "when Christianity will not be taught exclusively by word of mouth, but by living Christlike lives. In Turkey, I found our girls' school a strict law against teaching Christianity, and there is nothing left for missionaries but to teach in secular schools, and live Christ-like lives. I found much the same local law in India.

"One of the reasons why I think that Russia is going to be ahead is that she has set 20,000 men and women to work in the realm of research. These agents are going at their labor in the scientific spirit, and their findings should help us make a new Russia, capable of teaching the world lessons of real value.

"The traditional Christian church may be failing to keep abreast of the times, and may consequently lose out, as it seems to be doing in many localities. Religion, however, was never more needed and never more sought."

Dr. Scudder expressed himself as terribly disappointed to come back to Massachusetts to find that Sacco and Vanzetti had been executed, declaring how as a secretary of the Church Federation he became convinced that the two men were absolutely innocent of the crime for which they were accused.

Prominent Catholic in Mexico Statement

Archbishop Ruiz announced the following, while in Washington in Mexico this week in connection with peace negotiations between church and state:

"I consider the settlement as the beginning of a real era of peace for the Republic, which will without doubt feel the benedictions which come together with harmony and the close union of a whole nation with its government.

"Now, more than ever, I feel most deeply obliged to all those who have interested themselves in this problem

FR. O'CONOR IS VERY HAPPY IN DEDHAM

Fr. O'Conor

One who visits the mother parish house of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross on Washington st. and then steps into the parish house of St. Mary's of Dedham receives a distinct impression of a shock by contrast. The Father Georges P. O'Conor, who for years knew nothing but the plainest living, and who sat daily in his restricted office at the Catholic Charitable Bureau, at Tremont st., has found a little difficult to adapt himself to bolatial quarters with a front door of solid bronze, costing something like $1000. But he likes it, and with a face that literally beams, he shows his friends about with justifiable pride, pointing to shrubs and lawn and vines with the air of joyous possession.

Those who know this lovable priest, and who have watched him in season and out of season working almost day and night in the interests of the poor of Boston and Massachusetts, can hardly begrudge him his present elegance and satisfaction in worldly surroundings, that he had little to do with arranging. He does, however, mention with pleasure certain articles which are his own, such as a remarkable eight-day clock, complete with beautiful chimes, the charges of the moon, and other sidereal indications. Here, indeed, are the only "Bells of St. Mary's" which every quarter of an hour any one of three sets of chimes.

Fr. O'Conor's reception room is large but enough to receiving king, pope or president with its great Persian rugs, its leather upholstered furniture, its fireplace, and brilliant chandeliers.

There is a whole story in the church which holds 1000 people. It is built entirely of pink Dedham granite given by a Protestant citizen who owned a local quarry. The stained glass windows are both rare and beautiful, the result of work by the best European artists.

Father O'Conor welcomes all his friends, and is the same genial, helpful human being he was before he left Boston to take charge of one of the most beautiful churches in the commonwealth.

The Curious Quizzer

Brighton Folk Answer His Daily Question and Pose for Pictures.

THE QUESTION

Do you agree with the statement of two Chicago judges that young wives ruin domesticity by extravagance?

MISS MARGARET SULLIVAN, Etna st.—I do not agree with the two Chicago judges who say that young wives ruin domesticity by extravagance. There is no doubt but that the present day young married women has no idea a little better and dress better than her mother. This is due to the advancement of the times. I think that the present day young married wife is doing everything to make domestic conditions pleasant in every respect. I think this criticism on the part of the Chicago judges is unfair.

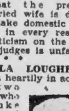
MISS ANGELA LOUGHREY, Fanuil st.: I am heartily in accord with the two Chicago judges who severely take young married wives today for their domestic extravagance. It seems that the average married girl of today lives far beyond her means and she has no consideration for her husband and the money which he earns. The girls of today upon entering matrimony do not realize how important it is to keep down expenses. They live too high and dress too expensive,



WILLIAM OWEN, Fanuil st.—I certainly do agree with the statement of the two Chicago judges regarding the extravagance on the part of young wives. It seems that the average young wife of today wants to spend twice as much as her husband earns. I cannot understand why they enter married life with this idea in mind. It seems to me that these two Chicago judges who have set on numerous cases in the domestic sessions, have a good idea of just how a young married woman lives and spends her money. I know of several cases where young married wives are extravagant.

FRANK N. MADIGAN, Bennett st. Yes I believe the young married wives of today are altogether too extravagant. All they think of are good times and good clothes, with little or no thought of keeping down the family expense. It is too bad that the average married girl of today can't see forward enough to realize how important it is not to be extravagant. They do not realize how important it is not to be extravagant. They do not consider their husbands' earning powers. Many do not even think of saving part of the weekly salaries of their husbands for a rainy day. These Chicago judges in my opinion have the right idea on present day young married wives.

RADIO'S IRISH BROGUE NOT TRUE TO LIFE

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

THE STAGE IRISHMAN commenced to disappear during the later Weber and Fields days. An intelligent public had long since sickened of the unnatural and repugnant ceature whose brogue was manufactured on First Avenue, and whose manners were apel from the actions of barnyard quadrupeds. Radio is bringing him back. Worse still, radio is bringing his wife back, and it's time that all true Irishmen and all true sons of Irishwomen rose in their wrath and smote the the wretched counterfeit into final oblivion.

SMITE THEM DOWN

THERE IS AN AGREEABLE WAY of impersonating the Irish, and there is a disagreeable way of impersonating the race. Invariably women actresses choose the disagreeable way. One of the most atrocious radio Irishwoman heard these nights is the lady who forges the personality of Mrs. Murphy in the Sunday La Palina broadcast over Columbia stations. If it is impossible for women to reproduce a true Irish brogue, and to translate true Irish character, then there should be a stop put to all attempts to introduce such characterization in radio programs. As they are done at present, they are distinctly offensive.

Woman Fined for Assault on Lawyer

Mrs. Ann Moscovelli of 1 Fern ave., Brighton, was fined $10 by Judge Zattoli on a charge of assault and battery on Edward Carr, an attorney, in the municipal court. According to testimony, Carr and Mrs. Moscovelli became involved in an argument, following testimony in a warant session. Mrs. Moscovelli had paid attorney Carr $700 for services, giving a diamond ring as part security. Upon Carr's refusal to return the ring Mrs. Moscovelli struck him. She was arrested by special officer Robert Lynch of the Milk st. station.

Judge Zottoli told the woman that she should not take the law into her own hands. Mrs. Moscovelli appealed.

ASKS $250,000 FOR INJURIES

Portland, Me., June 29—Two suits aggregating $250,000 have been filed against the Cumberland County Power & Light Company in the Supreme Court as the result of a trolley accident at Woodfords on April 23 in which two-year-old Patricia Gagliarde lost both feet.

An action for $200,000 is brought in behalf of the child by Ler father, George Gagliarde, because of alleged life long disfigurement, and the other of $50,000 is brought by him in behalf of himself and his wife for medical expenses and shock.

THE GOLF BUG has something to brag about and he can show the proof from the Sunday Advertiser weekly feature, Golf Scores at Local Clubs, when he does his bragging. This record of play in the various matches is one of the outstanding features of the Sunday Advertiser Sporting Section.

Do you ever lose your temper at the dinner table

Anger causes the stomach either to "blush" or grow pale, and when indulged in at dinner is likely to upset the digestion seriously. Fear and worry are also meal-time foes. A famous medical authority relates the case of a young woman who was confined to her bed with a severe case of stomach trouble when she was warned by the government collector that she had failed to pay her income tax of $3.85. Other actual cases are cited to prove the disastrous effects of anger, fear, and worry at meal-time. Read an illuminating, scientific article on this subject next Sunday in The American Weekly.

Murdered Man's Body Found Beside Smiling Bride

Pretty bride on the back seat said the man beside her was merely drunk. But the young policeman got the shock of his life when he uncovered the "drunk's" face and discovered it to be his friend of the filling station, a few miles beyond—not drunk . . . but murdered! Read this amazing story in The American Weekly next Sunday.

Long Lost War Hero Returns

A Senator's daughter, heiress, and Washington society belle, waited eight long years for her penniless and once almost kidnapped war hero to come back to her. Her faithfulness has now been rewarded! Read this touching romance of the toll of the Great War and the loyalty and devotion of a girl to her lover—next Sunday, in The American Weekly.

New Laws to Check Colorado's Romances

Colorado's "Twin Gretna Greens"—Littleton and Golden—have also become meccas for divorce pilgrims. Secret marriages and secret divorces in these hamlets have increased so rapidly that the Colorado general assembly has been asked to take a hand. Read this story of girls whose spectacular romances were culminated in swift union and have been just as swiftly dissolved, next Sunday, in The American Weekly.

May Make Fortune — Boys Took Max
Ring Toughest Game — The Great Bobby
Schmeling Delivers — Always Up There

MAX SCHMELING STEPPED OUT OF FAIRY TALES

Max Schmeling, unheard of in this part of the universe a year ago, is getting ready to box Jack Sharkey for the championship of the world. Max has collected a huge flock of dollars for himself, and his various managers. He has a chance to become one of the ring millionaires.

Boys read this, and make up their minds to become fighters, especially the husky kids, who promise to grow into the two hundred pound class. They have rosy dreams of a few fights, and then luxury and fame, and all that goes with it.

But that's all wrong. A few heavies become wealthy. Dempsey and Tunney are millionaires. Jack Sharkey is well heeled, and will be set for life after one more quarrel. Delaney has a good bankroll. And that almost exhausts the lists.

Ring champions make money, but most of them toss it away. And every champ, there are thousands of aspirants, who take up the ring racket, get punched daffy, and are useless to themselves and everybody else for the rest of their lives.

You see them lurking around the gyms, and at the fight clubs, getting a sorrowful little kick out of occasional recognition. The fight game is the toughest game of them all. Its honors go, naturally, to rugged, horny souled youths, who have great physical power and stout hearts. But when old age comes along, 99 per cent of the headliners are wrecks.

Jim Jeffries is a rather pitiful old man, and Jim was one of the great champs. Bob Fitz was scarcely a specimen of rugged physique or mentality in his last years. Remember Ad Wolgast, training for years and years in a sanitarium, to win back the title he thought somebody stole from him. Ad took too many punches, and his brain crumpled.

Fighters like Sharkey and Schmeling, and Tunney, have been lucky. Fortune, however, doesn't fall on any but the favored few. The rest of the crowd are crushed to provide for others the path to glory. Which is just the way of life, at that.

MAX ALMOST OWED SELF MONEY AFTER DEBUT

ALL is not gold that glitters in the stories of these fighters. Even the shrewdest of them get little more than 50 per cent of the purses, after all the bills are paid, the hangers on staked, etc.

Big league boxing is a large business, and each scrapper's entourage includes a flock of high-priced executives, as you might say.

Schmeling, in his first fight in this country, drew $5000. When his various managers, rubbers and trainers had totaled up their bills, Max found that he owed $7100. Which just about left him his fare back to Germany.

If Sarazen could come through in the open, Italy as well as Germany would have something spoiling to cheer about.

SCHMELING HAS DONE ONE FAVOR. COPY READERS NO LONGER HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT THE SPELLING OF UZCUDUN, IF THAT'S HOW YOU SPELL IT.

BOBBY GREATEST CHAMPION OF THEM ALL

It was whispered around Winged Foot that Bobby Jones was slipping, when the news was flashed that he had missed two shots on the first two holesHe played opening day. The boys were sorry, but grabbed new lease of life, just the same. With Bobby out of the way, there might be a chance.

Then the tale of his miracle finish drifted in. He is the master golfer, and will be for as many years as he cares to continue. None but a links magician could knock five strokes off par on that tough last nine. His second round, in a deluge, sparkled.

No branch of sport packs the uncertainties that are found along the golf highway. One missed shot may bring on positive ruin. A hundred accidents can crop up in any single round. Yet Robert Tyre has been hanging along for the last six years, never worse than second in an amateur or an open.

The beckoning rough and the yawning trap affect him not at all. He rises above the handicaps, not once but always. Which marks the true champion. If his luc is partly as good as his golf, Robert will be a Supreme Court judge before he's 50.

Geo. Lott Enters Quarter-Finals

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 29—George M. Lott, Jr., forging his way through the singles of the Wimbledon tennis championships, entered the quarter-final round today by defeating J. Kozeluh of Czecho-Slovakia, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4.

Lott played a brilliant game and provided one of the finest performances yet showed by an American in this important tournament.

Important matches are scheduled in all branches of play today. In an early match in the women's singles, Miss E. Goldsack of England eliminated her countrywoman Mrs. R. L. C. Mitchell, 4—6, 7—5, 6—0.

Billie Tapscott of South Africa defeated Miss Chamberlain of England 6—3, 7—5, 6—4.

H. Timmer of Germany eliminated Nigel Sharpe, England, 3—6, 3—6, 6—0, 11—9.

Von Ekehrling of Hungary entered the quarter finals by defeating Cliffe of England 9-7, 7-5, 6-4.

Helen Wills and Edith Cross, American girls, eliminated Mrs Molla Mallory, former American woman's champion, and Miss Desmidt, from the doubles play. The scores were 6-1, 5-7, 6-1.

Joan Ridley of England entered the quarter finals by defeating Fraulein Cilly Aussem of Germany, 8—6, 6—1.

SIX GO AFTER WILEY MARK

Six bikers will assault George Wiley's record for one hour at the Revere Cycle Track tonight, and all are confident that the mark —45 miles three laps—which has stood for nearly 10 years at last will topple.

The record has been approached to a quarter of a lap before, but never in all the races has a rider been able even to equal it.

Leading the list tonight will be George Chapman, the old man of the cycling game and Victor Hopkins, a former champion, who won the title race at the beach oval last Wednesday.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Jones Three Up on Field at 54th Hole

THREE PAST MASTERS OF ROYAL AND ANCIENT GAME

Al Espinosa of Chicago was near the top of the list all the way in the Open title play.

Farrell Praises Jones' Playing

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Golf Champion.

WINGED FOOT GOLF CLUB, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 29—Actually I am the American open champion until my successor is crowned this evening, but, figuratively, I have passed out of the picture.

This was an old story to Jones, in fact. Open champion in 1923 and 1926 and involved in unsuccessful ties for the title in 1925 and 1928, besides his victories in the amateur and in the British open event, this was to be just another final day of another championship to Jones.

To Sarazen, winner seven years ago and always a deadly competitor, the matter was much the same. Armour was another who had been through the fire of this moment and had successfully lived it down.

Espinosa and Shute, fine golfers both, were yet to win a major tournament or even draw the finish to a fine pin stripe. It was believed that this lack of "big moment" experience might hamper either or both of them in the stress of the last two rounds, although no one will deny that they have the golf from which champions are molded.

Diegel, however, would be considered of greater potential danger were he in the place of either of them. As it was, both Leo and Schmuite were deemed a bit too far back, particularly with a hurdle like Jones between them and the lead.

Jones, perforce, was the start and finish of all premises. It is committing a bromide to state that the man who beats him will win the championship. They always must beat Jones or they don't win.

Reigh Count May Never Race Again

New York, June 29 (INS)—Reigh Count, the American horse that was runner-up in the Ascot Gold Cup race, may never race again.

J. D. Hertz, of Chicago, said he plans to put Reigh Count in the stud when the horse arrives here on the Minnetonka on July 15 next.

"However, if the English will bring Inversbin over here, I'll put Reigh Count against that horse for the $100,000 purse offered in Chicago," he said.

Roxbury Nine Plays Nutros Tomorrow

The Nutro Ginger Ale baseball team will play the Roxbury B B C at the W. E. Eustis playgrounds, Roxbury, tomorrow afternoon.

Manager Lynch of the Nutros will send Dave Owens, ex-Harvard star, to the mound to try to stem the attack of the Roxbury team.

Eight Horses in Memorial Handicap

Chicago, June 29 (AP)—A field of eight horses, the pick of four classes, was set to start in the first running of the Francis S. Peabody Memorial Handicap, featuring the closing program of racing at the Washington Park track today.

The event, a mile and a quarter with $10,000 added money, for three-year-olds and up, was offered by Stuyvesant Peabody, vice-president of the Washington Park Jockey Club, in memory of his father.

Red Sox Head Host to Newsboy Gang

President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox will act as host to a large delegation of out of town newsboys who will see the Red Sox and Yankees clash at Braves Field tomorrow.

Arrangements for distributing the tickets have been made with the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation.

Chiefs of police in the metropolitan district are co-operating with the Foundation officials in the distribution of the tickets.

Aycock Wins

Hollywood Golf Club, Deal, N. J., June 29—Tommy Aycock of Yale defeated Marshall Forrest of Lowell, Mass., his teammate, on the 14th green by a score of 5 and 4.

SARAZEN IS SECOND WITH 218

to get home and wound up with a 5 while Bobby took a fine par 3. Espinosa slipped off another stroke to the Georgian at the 17th, where he had his second straight five of the inward round, and Sarazan was "flat" with the Spaniard.

Jones began to clerk off fours with such regularity that he found little trouble overtaking his rivals.

Tomy Armour, a former champion, passed up a wonderful opportunity to get right into the midst of the fight by starting home 5 5 6 after going out in 36, during which he had seven 4's, a 3 and a 5. Armour started off his final round six strokes back of Bobby Jones, which appears to be too much of a concession to such a golfer as the Atlantan.

Espinosa continued to stagger home and wound up with a 41 for the last night, but Sarazen snapped back into championship form and, in spite of more than the usual amount of trouble, produced another 36 for his 76.

With Jones, Sarazen and Espinosa accounted for, Densmore Shute was the big attraction, for the news came that he had reached the turn in 35 and was even with Bobby.

The large gallery rushed to catch a glimpse of the Ohio boy and started their efforts, for as some of the crowd began to gather sensation to blow. And blow he did to the extent of duplicating Espinosa's inward round, 41, dropping him back to fourth place with 220.

Outstanding among the many wonderful shots of this morning was Bobby Jones' spoon to the 458th green. Sarazen and Espinza, who preceded Jones to this hole, had both caused birdies and Bobby did not want to slip a stroke at this stage. He connected with a terrific drive and then "spooned" his way home to within 12 feet of the cup and ran down a putt for the first eagle of the championship at this hole.

Bobby was a trifle wobbly at the start, being two over par going to the 424d hole. But from then on he was Bobby Jones in every sense of the word. His outward finish was 3, 3, 4, 3, and then he came home in even fours.

Two of the New England contestants had fine rounds this morning. Harry Cuici and Louis Chiapetta turned in 75's, which, although it did not put them in the running, was very useful, giving the former a 54-hole total of 221 and the latter 229.

Winged Foot Course Very Difficult for Third Round

Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 29—Beginning play on a course that was perhaps four strokes harder even night, because of high winds and soggy turn Tommy Armour, the 1927 champion, shot two par 4's to open his third round of the national open golf championship this morning, picking up a stroke on one of the co-leaders, Al Espinosa, at the first hole. The latter tied for the lead with Gene Sarazen at the start of the round with 142 each, but a stroke to par at the first taking a 5.

Jones and Shute began the round in a dead heat at 141.

Armour was a single stroke behind this pair. He was off to an excellent start, hitting a straight ball off the first tee and getting home with a low, well hit second into the wind, the ball topping 25 feet from the tee.

Espinosa, on the other hand, was even longer off the tee, but didn't get into his second shot and it stopped short of the green. He had a simple run up to the pin, but this was short, too, and he took a 5. So did Louis Chiapetti, with whom he was playing a trap, catching the latter's approach.

GOOD START.

Armour, paired with his fellow Scotsman, Bobby Cruickshank, hit another good tee shot at the second hole and got home with his approach, which, however, barely escaped the trap on the right. From this point he, too, putted for a 4.

Espinosa followed with a par 4 and 3 on the next two, needing a great recovery to save him from a buzzard at the second hole. Here his tee shot was perfection, but his second drifted to a trap.

Even Jones couldn't get a par 4 on the opening hole. The great one started off with Al Watrous and a 5000 gallery and hit a screecher off the tee. It had a slight pull, however, and left him a difficult second because of a long carry over the traps and a tree that was just out of the line of flight. Anyhow, Jones missed the green, dropping in the short rough to the right. Here he had to clip over another trap and the effort was weak, stopping 20 feet from the pen. He then two-putted to take a 5.

HILDA BOEHM WINS JUNIOR NET TITLE

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY.

Hilda Boehm, all-around athlete from Malden high school, won the junior girls' single tennis title at the Longwood Cricket Club courts, Chestnut Hill, today, by defeating Miss Helen Bidwell of Winchester in three sets, 6—1, 2—6, 6—4.

Mrs. George W. Wightman presented the 16-year-old winner with a silver cup at the finish of the match that provided many thrills.

Miss Boehm came back after a faulty second set to outplay Miss Bidwell in the third and win the crown.

The first set saw Hilda driving clever placements to all corners of the court for a clean-cut victory. Then she lost the final four games of the second set after the first four had been evenly divided.

The order was reversed in the third set when Miss Boehm ran out a victory in the last four games after being down 4 games to 2. Her comeback in this set was marked with brilliant tennis and was enthusiastically applauded.

Tom Sedgwick of Newton won the younger boys' singles from Sumner Bodman of Dorchester and a student at Boston Latin school by scores of 6—4, 6—4. Richard Dunnell of Newton High and Charles Hazlinn of Mason school defeated Robert Bentley and David Swan, both of Arlington High, in the younger boys' doubles honors by scores of 6—4, 8—6. The winners displayed greater knowledge of doubles play in the match and played their margin of victory.

Point score of Boehm-Bidwell match:

JUNIOR TENNIS STARS IN ACTION AT LONGWOOD

TWINS TRAIN IN ICY WATER

By BERENICE AND PHYLLIS ZITTENFIELD

Dover, England, June 29—Despite the comparatively frigid temperature of 54, we are still proceeding with our water training undismayed by the cold. According to Bill Kellingly, we are "natural sea swimmers who don't avoid rough seas when training."

Kellingly is increasing our water tasks daily, and today he took us as far as the breakwater and made us swim through the narrow opening against the trend tide. We beat the tides and rough waves easily and accomplished what no local swimmer has yet attempted.

We have swum through the breakwater three times and through the breakwater without any effort. The local experts predict that, if we can maintain our stroke, we will break all records. Our strength and speed caused Capt. Pearson, our pilot, and Bill Kellingly, our trainer, to readjust their plans.

The present scheme is for us to set out against the tide and then obtain the advantage of the strong ebb tide which will carry us towards France for about ten hours. Capt. Pearson and Bill Kellingly hope by that time we will be within easy distance of Cape Gris-Nez.

Next week we will try to beat swimmer, Frank Perks, which was six hours and fourteen minutes in the swim from Dover to inside Ramsgate harbor, a distance of twenty miles. We have so far tried that this week-end but conditions were reported unfavorable.

HARVARD AND YALE PLAY FOR POLO TITLE

Philadelphia, June 29 (AP)—With both teams in prime condition and mounted on some of the best ponies in the country, teh final match for the intercollegiate polo championship of the United States between Harvard and Yale today promised to be one of the most thrilling contests of the tournament.

Yale, the defending champion, ruled a slight favorite, but the Crimson riders had many supporters who looked for them to upset the advanec dope. Capt. Peter Folger of Yale was prepared to play today for the first time since he was injured in a practice game a few days before the tournament started on June 15. West Point, Pennsylvania Military College and Princeton were eliminated in previous games.

Harvard has one of the strongest fours it has produced in years. The team is composed of J. P. Cotton, No. 1; E. T. Gerry, No. 2; Forrester Clark (captain), No. 3, and J. T. Mandell, No. 4, with E. K. Jenkins and T. B. Glynn as substitutes.

Yale has a well-balanced team in Capt. Bolger at No. 1; S. P. Porter, No. 2; Hardie Scott, No. 3; J. C. Rathbone, No. 4, with Earl Potter as substitute.

Yale has captured the title three consecutive years. The contest was called for 3:30 p. m.

Extra Heats in Harness Races

Toledo, O., June 28 (AP)—Two of the four Grand Circuit races at Fort Miami track tonight went into extra heats. The feature, a 15-class trot for a purse of $2000, was won by Royal Guy, driven by Harry Stokes.

The bay gelding owned by Roy E. Davis, won the first two heats with Walter Cox's Athelone Guy furnishing the chief contention, but in the third finished last in the field of five.

Peter Cowie, driven by McMillen, won the 11-class trot by taking three straight heats. Hal Watts, winner of the first heat, never was prominent after that.

Joe Lewis, favorite in the 10-class pace, won the first heat with Doc Parshall driving, but lost the other two and the race to Will Crozier's Volo Rico.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Sun Back Suits Affected on Courts

Sun-back bathing suits, a new fad among the woman bathers this year, has extended to the tennis courts.

Many of the young women in the Longwood Cricket Club tournament this week have been noted wearing tennis dresses with the backs cut away. Miss Maribel Vinson, the national skating champion from Radcliffe, was the first exponent of this fad to be seen.

Stockings have also been dispensed with. Following the example of Helen Wills, most of the tennis players have cast aside their hosiery. Only two girls have been seen wearing stockings out of some 75 playing in the junior and younger girls tournaments this week.

WILLIE RITCHIE FOOLS BENNY LEONARD

By TAD

With his left eye closed and his hair mussed in disgraceful fashion, Benny Leonard answered the call of the bell for the fourth round of his fight with Willie Ritchie in San Francisco, February 21, 1919, to kill or be killed. His idea was all right, but it seems that Ritchie was there with the same thought, and the toughest three minutes of miling ever seen in Frisco was the result. WILLIE RITCHIE WON.

There's no disputing that Benny Leonard got the shock of his young life. He did make a sucker of Johnny Kilbane, he did knock Freddie Welsh out, and he did almost kill Ritchie Mitchell. This time he met a horse of a different color.

You might say that it was overconfidence. I think that it was myself.

Before the fight Benny leaned over the ropes and, speaking to a friend, said: "Gee, I never felt better in my life. Get a few smacks down on me."

Ritchie was first to enter the ring and wore purple trunks. He was given quite a hand. Frisco fans love a game guy, and Ritchie was that. Leonard was in a few seconds later and drew a big mitt himself.

ALWAYS COMING

He wore white silk running tights with a red, white and blue sash. His hair was combed neatly and he walked over with a smile to meet his opponent.

They smiled, pasted a few words and then put on the gloves.

There never was a time during the four rounds that Ritchie wasn't coming. He forced the fighting from the time the gong sounded until the end, and that included many strenuous moments.

There wasn't much to the first round, except that Ritchie impressed everyone present with the idea that he was going to win with a knockout, if such a thing was possible.

Leonard stepped around, let Willie shoot a few loose lefts, rubbed his nose and smiled. Ritchie shot a left again and a right that seemed to come from nowhere and missed Benny's chin an eighth of an inch.

At the bell the house was in an uproar. They yelled "Joe Gans, eh! Where d'ye get that stuff?" It was a sort of a razz for Benny.

In the second, Ritchie was over in Leonard's corner before the latter was fairly out of his seat. The smell of win was in his nostrils and he wanted to lose no time.

DUCKS RIGHT

Leonard ducked the deadly right and they broke in the center of the ring. Ritchie tried again and Leonard beat him to it, hooked him with a left on the chin, abreasted knocking him flat.

Willie rocked a moment and the wise guys yelled, "I told you so." Leonard hooked him three times in a row with the left, but Ritchie came forward all the time.

He seemed to thrive on those lefts.

SLUGGING MATCH

An awful mixup followed, in which both took right and lefts which both took one present could count them.

It was a slugging match, in which both were very much interested.

The bell sounded as Ritchie had Leonard backed into neutral corner. He kept on slugging for dear life until Jim Griffin pulled him away.

The third round came and Leonard was out for murder. His foolish Willie with his left and shook him all the way up. Once more he landed and smiled. It looked as though Ritchie had shot his bolt.

Leonard, for the first time in the fight, tried his right as a regular thing. He missed and missed again.

He meant business, but was on the retreat all the way.

Ritchie backed Benny up again with lefts and shot the dreaded right to the head. There was a mixup in close and Benny came out of it with his eye almost shut. That drew a big laugh and another cheer and they went at it like wild men again, with Leonard in the lead, but still running second.

He was trying for a knockout, for he had to get it to win.

It was Leonard's round.

LEONARD MISSES

As the bell rang for the last round Leonard's eye was almost closed. He rubbed it as he went to the centre, but it seemed to get worse. Ritchie with his head on the side, said something to Benny about the glim, and smiled for the first time during the fight.

He shot the right and blew it. Shot it again and missed.

Leonard then dealt out some lefts to the nose and missed with the right.

Ritchie covered his head with both hands, and it was nothing but sheer luck that saved him.

Had Leonard shot either hand to the body the fight would have been his, but he saw nothing but the chin and missed everything he let go in his rush to end it.

As Ritchie got out of the tight place the mob gave him a terrific cheer and egged him on to knock the champ out. He backed Benny across the ring with lefts and then got a right on the puss himself that almost put his lights out.

ZERAMBY BIG LOCAL CARD

Little Jake Zeramby, the Lynn featherweight, who clashes with Andrew Routis of France, featherweight champion of the world at the Boston Garden, Monday night, July 8, now promises to step into the gap left vacant by the collapse of so many local boxing cards.

With Jimmy Maloney out of the game with a badly split eye, which will keep him inactive for many weeks and with Honeyboy Finnegan taking a rest and Al Mello out of the game temporarily, Zeramby faces the task of filling in for these big gate attractions.

It's been many years since such a popular figure in the boxing game has appeared on the horizon and it was this great popularity that earned him the opportunity to jump from the ranks of the preliminary boys to a place among the main bout performers.

It is planned to make the weekly shows at the Garden more attractive than ever and with the installation of a new refrigerating system for the comfort of the fans on warm nights, it is expected that the summer season with its summer schedule of prices will prove popular.

An entire featherweight show will mark the opening event and work is now progressing on the preliminary card, which will be announced early next week. Tickets already have been put on sale at the Boston Garden box offices, Capitol 3200.

Bouts on Cape to Start Wednesday

Professional boxing will open for the summer season at the Mill Still Arena of West Yarmouth, Cape Cod, on Wednesday night. The bouts will be sponsored by the Cape Cod Sporting Club, and every effort will be made to furnish the summer visitors with some high-class shows.

Eddie Shevlin, former New England welterweight, has been engaged as manager of the Arena, and as Eddie always had the reputation of furnishing the fans with the hottest kind of action while in the ring, he will insist on the boxers giving their best efforts every second they are in action.

For the opening show, the night before the Fourth, Billy Nelson, the Brockton favorite, will battle Johnny Scully of South Boston, in the ten-round feature contest.

Los Angeles Sends Team to Denver

Denver, June 29—The Los Angeles Athletic Club will send one of the most powerful track and field teams ever assembled in one group to the National A. A. U. track and field championships at Denver, July 3, 4 and 5, according to word received here by meet officials from Leslie A. Henry, club official and National A. A. U. track and field committee chairman.

Winnipeg Suggested for Big Title Bout

By JACK CONWAY

JOHNNY BUCKLEY, manager of Jack Sharkey, stated today he has suggested to William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, that the September bout between the Boston contender and Max Schmeling be staged at Winnipeg, Canada.

Buckley called Carey's attention to the fact that Detroit is a great railroad center and that it is easy to reach from all parts of the country. He believes that many tourists would take advantage of the opportunity to see Detroit, visit Canada and attend the heavyweight battle.

Carey has Schmeling signed for a September bout. He also has an option on the German Dempsey for a tussle in 1930 in the event he should win again in September.

Carey also has an option on Sharkey's services. By the terms of the option he must name the Boston battler's opponent by July 15.

THE Madison Square Garden Corporation prefers staging the Schmeling-Sharkey match at the Yankee Stadium, but before it can do so it must first iron out some of the German's contract difficulties.

When Herr Max was permitted by the New York Athletic Commission to battle Paulino at the Milk Fund show it was with the understanding that he later go through with his contracts with Humbert J. Fugazy and Jess McMahon of the New York Coliseum.

Fugazy has named Phil Scott of England as an opponent for Schmeling, while McMahon wants to pit the German against Risko in a return contest.

The New York Garden has already started negotiations with Fugazy and McMahon by which it hopes to secure releases of the contracts held by these promoters.

Amateurs Boxing in 5 Classes at Revere

Five classes will be contested at the amateur boxing show to be conducted at the Revere Cycle Track Tuesday night, the proceeds of which will go to the Revere Legion building fund. The classes, all open, are 112, 118, 135, 160 and heavyweight.

It is planned to feature the heavyweights. To date the most prominent entries in this division are Frank Sulkins, the giant sailor boy who made a great hit in the New Englands; Ug Gibson of Revere, and Adrian Guthrow of Nashua, N. H., a likely looking youngster.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SENATORS BEATEN BY RUSSELL

THE Red Sox have a chance to clean up a whole series today. Nothing like that has confronted them for so long that they almost forget the sensation. The Carrigans have smacked the Washington Senators twice in concussion, and play the final game of the engagement this p. m.

Large Ed Morris and Jack Russell pitched two great games against the Washington invaders. Big Charlie Ruffing will take his shot today. Manager Bill is holding Danny MacFayden and Milt Caston for the Yanks tomorrow. Bill believes that the shrewd brand of ball teased by the latter came in the medicine for the champions.

Ruffing has been breaking his neck to win a game in Boston, but fate has been most unkind to him. He may get his break in this series. The Senators are not playing inspired baseball. Just a good ball club gone wrong. A terrible start removed most of the fire and impetus.

THE SUCCESSIVE wins of Morris and Russell have persuaded Carrigan that perhaps there is some justice. Bill has been working all year to get his staff so arranged that he could work hurlers in regular order. That was one of his fundamentals in the old days.

But the Sox staff is small, and reserves are scarce. The regulars have to go in for relief work, as well as the steady assignment stuff. Naturally, that held them back in the early months.

The boys have all strengthened up by this time, however, and Bill has five right hand pitchers he can use successively, with his southpaw Bill Sayne, as the variety relief man. Two more pitchers who could go in there with a chance of winning would make Bill believe that the millenium had arrived.

IT has been voted that Wallie Gerber is the club's best utility infielder, so Grant Gillis has been sent to Columbus on option. Grant had his moments, but his play was too uncertain to satisfy. And he did not hit the ball in the way his past records convinced Bob Quinn he would.

Gillis has been on the verge of becoming a big leaguer for quite a few years. He still has a chance and Quinn intends to hang onto him while that exists. Gerber has subbed brilliantly at both short and second. He still has the knack of getting mean bounders. He doesn't stand up under steady firing, but he's as good as they come for occasional work.

THE Sox wind up this short home stand tomorrow with the Babe Ruths. Then they go off along the eastern trail, and out into the west. They will take a good showing in the far parts, if they hope to escape the cellar. A winning streak would yank them out if they could carry it through the haunts of their immediate predecessors.

These Senators have been erratic in the field in their last two games. If they keep it up, Ruffing should come through finally for that win. And three in a row would mean a great jump for the Ruthian spectacle tomorrow.

Johnny Casper to Battle Nat Kawler

Considerable interest is being manifested over the outcome of the clash between Johnny Casper of this city and Nat Kawler of New York scheduled to be decided at the Marks Stadium, Tiverton, R. I., Monday night. These two lightweights fought a slashing battle at this club two weeks ago and should furnish the fans with plenty of action again.

Casper is a big favorite with Rhode Island fans. He whipped Nat Kawler, Frank Stevens, Joe Accetta and lost a questionable decision to Andy Callahan of Lawrence in last four bouts. Kawler whipped Walter Peters of Germany in a torrid contest and is confident he will square accounts with Casper this time. Matchmaker Sam Price has arranged an excellent preliminary bill to support this main event.

Somerville Cubs Face Newton T. T.

The Somerville Cubs, fresh from a victory over the Philadelphia Colored Giants, will try for their 33d victory of the season at their home grounds, Lincoln Park, tomorrow afternoon, when they oppose the strong Newton Town Club.

Manager Bill Flynn of the Cubs will send either Joe McGonagle, former Everett high twirler, or Jim McCarthy, local favorite, to the mound.

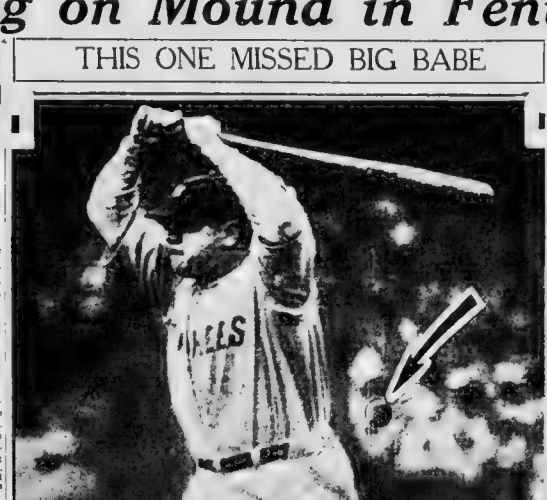
THIS ONE MISSED BIG BABE



This shows the great clouter, here tomorrow with the Yankees, hauling his chest out of the way of a fast one. Pitchers try to push the Babe away from the plate by "dusting him off" now and again. But they haven't frightened him yet. Arrow points to ball whizzing by.

Dictatorial Umpires Injure Baseball, Bill Sweeney Declares

By SAM P. CARRICK

Met Bill Sweeney on the street today.

Bill is just a trifle busy with his insurance clients and his automobile, but he finds time even in a blue moon to go out to the parks and tiff one may be permitted to paraphrase Sir Walter Scott:

"To moralize on the dreary

Bill is no pessimist. His outlook on life is a cheery one and he can see silver linings where most of us detect nothing save murky gloom.

But he can't help noticing the changes (minor ones, to be sure) that have crept into the game he once adorned. It's the UMPIRES, Bill says, and he was no hater of the indicator holders in the olden day.

"The power now given the umpires in both leagues has harmed the players," Bill declared.

None of the players are in their for their health," he added, "and every time they are mulcted a century note or so they are reasonably peeved.

Raise your voice in any protest, right or wrong, and quit you with a fine to boot there-after. The effect of all this has been to dampen the ardor of the performers. They stay to win, of course. None of the players are in their fighting spirit when some "rah rah" person from which they feel they is no appeal is given against their team.

There also has developed a tendency among the umpires to speed up the game at the expense of the game itself. I mean that, when one of the contending nines gets out in front, the umpire behind the bat is very apt to call every ball that comes within speaking distance of the plate a strike. There is no intent of unfairness in the umpires' work. One team suffers an infinite just as much as the other in the long run. But it doesn't make for the right sort of baseball for all that.

Order must be maintained, of course, but there is no need of leaning over backward. Give the player just a little more freedom, let him speak his mind now and again and the game will be improved more than you would believe to be possible. Make the ball a bit more of a forum and less of an inquisitorial court and you will have rid the good old game of more than half the ills it now fallen heir to. Let the player tell what he thinks.

EQUALS RECORD OF SPEAKER

A young man named Buster Chatham, who plays shortstop for the Pueblo team of the Western league, and who has been doing a fancy stroke of batting in the class A circuit, tied Tris Speaker's record for consecutive hits last week. In a doubleheader with Omaha on June 9, Chatham combined two singles, a triple and two nected nine straight times. He homers in the first game and four singles in a row in the second. Next day he ran his string to 11 by smashing home runs on his first two trips before falling off. That represents a total of 25 bases. When Mr. Speaker set up the mark in 1920, he had a total of 12 bases.

That Chatham is not a [illegible] picker in the hitting line is shown by the fact that he is leading the league in batting with an average of somewhere in the neighborhood of .410. He formerly was with Kansas City.

Bracey Does "100" In 93-5 Seconds

Denver, Colo., June 29 (AP)—With three watches clocking the seconds, Claude Bracey, Rice Institute sprinter, yesterday equalled the world's record for the century dash—0.6 seconds, in a trial heat in the University of Denver Stadium in preparation for the National Amateur Athletic Union championship here next week.

George Simpson, who ran the distance 9.6 at Chicago with starting blocks, will be among those to compete with Bracey in an attempt to shatter the mark. The A. A. U. has not accepted Simpson's mark as yet, presumably because of the use of starting blocks

SINGLE "TWI" GAME TODAY; 3 SUNDAY

By DICK McSWEENEY

A single Twi League game is being played this afternoon at Salem, where Reading is entertained on Donovan Field.

Three games will be played tomorrow afternoon Roslindale furnishing the opposition at Salem, Taunton visiting Dorchester, and South Boston facing Quincy at Fore River field.

Reading will go to Salem this afternoon under the management of Clarence Doucette, son of George L. Doucette, new owner of the club, who promises better baseball for Reading Twi fans.

Reading seems to be destined for an indefinite stay in seventh place unless the combination of new management and new spirit among the players can produce in a winning streak.

Salem is just a notch above Reading in the standing and this club, too, seems destined to remain in its present position for the next few days, at least.

Reading faces a smart twirler in Louis Page today. The former St Anselm's hurling star has gained from his experience facing prep school nines and his work for Salem shows it.

Thurston, Lane and Condon are smacking the ball again and should prove troublesome to Reading's hurlers.

Doherty teases for Reading with Ahern catching. The lineup of the team has been shifted somewhat in an effort to gain hitting and fielding strength.

TWO SIGNED; TWO GO

Manager Fred Mellon of the Roslindale club announced today that he has acquired the services of Peter Herman, pitcher, and Bill Butenhuys, outfielder. He also stated that pitchers Streeker and Buckley had been given their release.

Streeker may go with the Taunton club.

Herman, former Boston College star, is looked to bolster Roslindale's pitching, while Butenhuys is a valuable acquisition because of his batting ability. He was among the leading Twi League batters while at Malden, the club he formerly played with.

SPLIT SEASON VOTE BY N. E. LEAGUERS

By CHARLES HOFFMAN

The New England League club-owners are now taking a vote as to whether they will continue as was decided at the start of the year with one straight season or split it into halves as they did in other years. So far the vote is four to one for a split season, with three clubs to be heard from. Lynn Brockton and Haverhill are the clubs that voted for the dividing of the schedule into two halves while Wm Clark of Manchester opposed it. His club is within three and one-half games of first place and he figures that he has a good chance to cop the pennant.

Lou North, veteran flinger, turned in another fine pitching performance, holding the Manchester sluggers to seven scattered hits and winning 7 to 0.

Hooks Dunlap, formerly of Lynn, kept the Providence team up in front when he held New Haven to five hits.

Lewiston, Portland and New Bedford are yet to be heard from. The split season will greatly help the weaker clubs, especially, Nashua, which had tough sledding at the start when the team was at Lowell is gradually strengthening the club.

Four games are on for today, Haverhill playing a doubleheader at Lewiston, New Bedford going to Brockton, Manchester playing Portland again and Lynn playing the tailend Nashua club.

UTILITIES AND RAILS SET UP NEW HIGHS

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, June 29—The railroad and public utility stocks forged ahead to new high price levels in the week-end short session. Renewed buying was also in evidence in the copper shares, which moved up briskly, under the lead of American Smelting and Anaconda. The Curtiss and Wright aero stocks were well bought in the last hour and the A T T and I T T shares forged ahead under persistent buying. The latter organization sold for the first time in its present form.

Business and financial conditions at the week-end were favorable and stock traders were encouraged by the distinct improvement in the money market. The pinch of the mid-year financing has practically passed over, time money rates being reduced down to the lowest rate of the year.

Stocks of the New York Metropolitan gas light companies jumped into the limelight at the opening, accompanied by rumors of a prompt consummation of the long projected merger. Consolidated Gas moved up 4 points to 132 and Brooklyn Union Gas 3 points to 211½, the highest prices on record for these stocks. American and Foreign Power boomed ahead to 122 for a new gain of 2 points.

Renewal of rail merger talk in the southwestern territory accompanied the active buying of Kansas City Southern, Katy and other Missouri Pacific issues, Missouri, Kansas & Texas (Kety) jumped 3 points to 58½, the highest price since its reorganization in 1925. The high grade dividend rails were inactive, with narrow price changes.

Westinghouse, the senior stock of the electrical manufacturing group, carried its spectacular advance 4 points to 192, completing a rise of 30 points since the middle of last week.

CONVERTIBLES LEAD BONDS

New York, June 29 (AP)—Convertibles pushed ahead again today as bond market, four of the leaders making new highs on an enormous turnover. Interest was spurred by the activity of the stocks.

Top prices were reached in the early trading for Interborough refunds 4½s, up 1; Atchison 4s, up 1½; International Telephone 5s, up 1, and Missouri Pacific 5½s, up ½. American International 4½s also displayed strength during the day's session, while Kansas City Southern 5s changed hands at a smaller net advance.

Rail, utility and industrial issue of other descriptions moved irregularly, although high grade bonds held fairly firm on the easy money rate.

United States Government issues ruled slightly higher in the curb list. Foreign bonds were firm in light demand with fluctuations minimal.

COTTON PRICES MOVE LOWER

New York, June 29 (AP)—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 4 to 11 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and expectations of generally good weather in the south over the week-end. There was extensive weekend realizing with local and commission houses selling. Prices were off 12 to 14 points net lower October declining to 18.58.

The opinion was expressed by some local traders that if the typical dismissive caused rains in South Texas they would probably prove more beneficial than otherwise but the depth brought in evidence of heavier selling and the market closed

Liverpool cables by cable and commission house estimates of the amount of cotton on contract in Saturday's certificated stocks for the week was stated at about 30,000 bales against 7,000 last year.

Brisk Price Rally in Wheat Achieved

Chicago, June 29 (AP)—In a general rush to buy, wheat scored a brisk rally today after a weak day. Liverpool wheat quotations were much higher than expected. Drought continued unbroken over the first reports of black rust in the spring wheat belt this season were received opening prices 2 to 3 cents higher. Chicago wheat showed some initial weakness then took went a reaction.

Corn, oats and provisions were also firmer with prices ranging up to 1¾@1¾c up and subsequently holding near its previous range.

Business Machines' Sales Ascend 20 P. C.

President Watson of International Business Machine Corp. said today in looking for Europe: "Conditions are satisfactory in practically every line of business. Our business is dependent on conditions existing in other lines of our volume this year is about 20 per cent above the same period of 1928, which was the best year in the company's history. LOEW'S PROFIT FIGURES ARE UP 25 P. C.

Net profit of Loew's, Inc., so far this year has been running approximately 25 per cent ahead of last year, when earnings were $8,568,182 after all charges, equal to $5.97 a share on 3,334,453 shares of common. On this basis net for the current fiscal year ending August 31, 1929, should be between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000, or between $7 and $8 a share on the 1,363,000 shares of common at present outstanding.

This of course will be the largest net ever shown by the company, the result, partly, of increased income from sound films and partly from new theatrical properties that consequently are being acquired. Two important new theatres, each seating more than 4000 persons, are being built in Greater New York, in Flatbush and on the Grand Concourse.

The Street has been puzzled by the lack of new developments following the announcement that William Fox had purchased a block of stock from the Loew family and from the management but he has said to give him control. This block did not comprise 51% of the outstanding stock, but it is understood to be sufficient to carry working control if desired.

The operation of Loew's, however, has been continued under its original executives, with no change of any kind from Fox. There has been no suggestion of any offer to minority stockholders from Fox Film Corp. and apparently no attempt at any closer affiliation between the two companies. It is understood there has been only the usual interchange of films between the two companies.

If the Loew and Fox companies including Fox Theater Corp., should be consolidated, it would create the largest and probably the strongest group in the moving picture industry, with total potential earning power of between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 annually. This is allowing Loew and Fox Film between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 in annual earnings and Fox Theaters about $5,000,000 in ultimate earning power.

Loew's has enormous holdings in valuable real estate, most of which are concentrated around the metropolitan district of New York and many years ago was purchased at prices that are only a fraction of present values although the properties in most cases are carried on the books at cost less heavy depreciation.

One of the notable examples is the Loew's State Theater on Broadway, facing Times sq., which cost with the land $5,000,000. The market value of the land is now more than $7,000,000, while the building has been written down to about $1,500,000

SHEEDY GIVES SAFETY TALK OVER AIR

By FRANK H. MELDON
Financial Editor

Joseph E. Sheedy, directing head of the combined U. S. and American Merchant Lines, discusses safety in a talk over the air tonight. He is the fifth in a group of financial and industrial leaders to deal with safety over the Saturday evening network. The fact illustrates what has been previously pointed out in this column, viz.: that such leaders are intensely interested in safety plans.

Mr. Sheedy started from the bottom of the shipping business, worked his way up through all the grades, and today he stands at the head of the largest shipping company in America. As a boy he was unable to suppress his desire to "go down to the sea in ships." His father permitted him to start maritime career on the old Massachusetts nautical ship Enterprise. He joined the engineering division and was soon first cadet officer in charge of his engineering class. He graduated from the school ship in 1888.

He joined the Army Transport Service and soon became chief engineer of the Wright. Later he joined the Revenue Cutter Service and was given the commission of a lieutenant, junior grade, and served for several years superintendent-engineer of the Hawaiian Electric Co. in Honolulu. And later with many very important maritime positions on the west coast. In 1921 he went to Europe as general European manager of the U. S. Shipping Board. He was called from Europe to assume the duties of vice-president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation in charge of operations and trustee of the U. S. Shipping Board. He remained in this work until the fall of 1924.

Report is made of the arrest of a broker on the charge of selling "unlisted securities." That, in a way, is not in itself any offense against the law. Many very sound securities are traded in daily. Some of them are better than some of the listed securities, and this applies to bonds as well as to stocks. Unlisted means not listed on a recognized stock exchange. "Unlisted stocks" are also referred to as "over the counter" issues. On many of them an excellent market is maintained.

Most New England textiles are unlisted securities. As a rule, however, listing tends to broader marketability, hence it is usually sought after a reasonable amount of distribution has been achieved. some issues are kept unlisted because the principal holders do not care to have reports of earnings, etc., made public, fearing they might benefit trade rivals.

Aviation stocks are very much in the ear-drum glow these days. All sorts of stories are broadcast to boost them. To cross over the city, New York, in a plane in only 11 hours is a noteworthy aerial achievement. One enthusiastic writer announced that it required to cross the six States in a day, but the fact is that almost any good sizable drive in any one of the Connecticut, could touch not only the six New England States, but also New York, in a day's motoring over a well-chosen route.

Great is the automotive industry. Aviation will have a long way to go to equal it, but it would be a daring prophet indeed who would venture the prediction that air travel will not some day be a genuine rival of land travel. Figures of securities, however, even in the most promising of fields, always do well to walk warily, lest later on they walk wearily.

Thomas L. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, says assets of American life insurance companies increased during 1928 by $1,200,000,000 the largest amount ever added in a single year. The total assets at the end of 1928 were $18,000,000,000 representing the security back of 85,000,000 policies having a total face value of approximately ninety-five billion dollars on maturity. Fire, marine and life insurance companies are also heavy investors in public utility securities.

All of this huge increase during 1928, as well as that of $16,000,000,000, in investments in industry and a very substantial contribution to the expansion of American business.

Investment by these companies in railroad bonds and stocks has increased approximately three times during the past 22 years, and amounts to slightly less than 19 per cent of the total assets. Investment in mortgages represents slightly more than 20 per cent.

Investment in public utility securities has increased from $131,000,000 in 1906 to $1,329,000,000 in 1928, an increase of almost 1000 per cent. During 1927 practically one-fifth of all investments of large insurance companies was in the securities of public utility companies.

GOLD SPIKES TO LINK RAILS

Washington, D. C., June 29—In the presence of dignitaries representing the Governments of the United States and Central American republics, Fred Lavis, president of International Railways of Central America, presented gold spikes to the Washington representatives of Guatemala and El Salvador.

The presentation was made at a ceremony in the rotunda of the Pan-American Union building. It marked the opening of the Pan-American Railways route linking the Atlantic and the Pacific, connecting the capitals of Guatemala and El Salvador, and bringing into existence another International railroad system.

Mr. Lavis presented the gold spikes to Adrian Recinos, minister of Guatemala, and Carlos Leiva, charge d' affaires of El Salvador here. In turn, will present the spikes to the Presidents of their respective Republics, who will drive them into the Lima rail uniting the new Guatemalan-El Salvador link, a ceremony which is scheduled for August.

Present also at the Washington ceremony, which parallels an occasion nearly half a century ago when the last spike was driven to create America's first transcontinental railroad, were Senor Don Juan B. Sacasa, minister of Nicaragua; Manuel Castro Quesada, minister of Costa Rica; Carlos A. Perdomo, minister of Honduras; Ramiro Fernandez, secretary of the Guatemalan legation; George J. Eder, chief of the Latin American section of the Department of Commerce; Damon G. Munro, representing the United States Department of State, and Dr Leo S. Rowe, director-general of the Pan-American Union. The presentation was arranged under the direction of Dr. Rowe, who acted in behalf of the Pan-American nations which he represents.

NEW AVIATION CONCERN TO BE LARGEST

Combination of Wright Aeronautical Corp. with Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Co., Inc., and several companies connected with the Keys and Hoyt interests brings into being the largest aviation concern in the world, and, with inclusion of transportation lines which the two interests practically control, the most complete.

Nevertheless, it is expected to take over several additional companies in the near future. These will probably include Moth Aircraft Corp. and Travelair Co., controlled by the Hoyt interests, and Sikorsky Aviation Corp. and Keystone Aircraft Co. connected with the Keys group.

It seems doubtful if the transportation interests of the Keys-Hoyt group will enter the newly formed company. However, it is only logical that co-operation of another company in the near future which will include the transportation interests. This company would naturally will be closely affiliated with Curtiss-Wright Corp., and will include in its new system planes operating air mail services from New York to Chicago to Dallas, Texas, which will connect with those shortly on its New York to Pacific Coast line; Maddux Air Lines, operating Export Corp. will be the distributing agency for planes and motors, and, in addition, the company will have several manufacturing units abroad.

In Canada, Curtiss Reid Co., Ltd., and its building sport model biplanes and is about to expand its lines. There is also a Canadian Wright Corp. for manufacture of the J-6 series motors and the "Whirlwind" engines, and Wright motors are now being produced there for distribution.

BUSINESS FOR ACCESSORIES IS GOOD

Expected seasonal showing of automotive parts and accessory operations appeared during May, but decline from the record April was moderate and business was well ahead of May, 1928. While June will show some further recession, a good fruit half is noted. Tremendous momentum gathered in first five months of the year will carry through the summer and into the third quarter well ahead of previous years, according to Motor Equipment Association.

Aggregate shipments in May of several hundred manufacturers supplying the passenger-car, truck and truck manufacturers and parts, accessories and garage repair equipment in the wholesale trade were 245 per cent of the January, 1925, base index of 100, against 234 in April, 241 in March, 201 in May last year.

Parts-accessory manufacturers selling to car and truck assembly plants or to original equipment made shipments aggregating 278 per cent of the January, 1925, base, against 287 in April, and 215 in May last year.

Shipments to the wholesale trade in May by manufacturers of replacement parts were 169 per cent of January, 1925, against 172 in April, and 183 in May last year. Unusually heavy business earlier than usual this year is responsible for May sales running below last May. A record first half has been reached up by replacement parts makers.

Accessory shipments in wholesale trade in May were 81 per cent, against 91 in April and 113 in May last year. The accessory business, largely affected for several years by standard equipment as car plants, and also by the policy of accessory distributors of cutting out manufacturers, has shown an improvement this year.

Service equipment shipments (repair shop machinery and tools) in May were 200 per cent of the January, 1925, base as against 227 in April and 157 in May last year. Service equipment manufacturing business has been running well ahead of previous years and is apparently started toward a record for 1929.

Sales volume of automotive wholesaler members in the United States and Canada in May was 72 per cent ahead of the high April figure.

Commercial Credit in Packard Deal

Commercial Credit Co. has entered into an exclusive contract with Packard Motor Car Co. to finance retail sales for Packard distributors and dealers, effective July 1. It is estimated that the Packard contract will bring to Commercial Credit a volume exceeding $200,000,000 annually. Commercial Credit has other important contracts under negotiation.

U. S. SMELTING EARNINGS UP 13 PER CENT

The 13-p per cent increase in United States Smelting's earnings available for dividends to $1,957,068 in the first five months of this year was made in the face of an average selling price for silver two cents an ounce below the average price of the corresponding period of 1928. An offsetting factor was the three-quarters of a cent per pound higher average for lead prices.

Current silver prices are three cents an ounce lower than the average for the first five months of this year will lead to approximately the same level. Zinc and copper are at higher prices than existed in 1928 but the relatively small tonnage of these metals, particularly copper, is a comparatively small part of the total earnings.

On a per share basis, earnings of $2.18 on common in the first five months showed a smaller margin than in the same period of 1928. This was due to the fact that outstanding common stock was increased by 219,447 shares from 536,115 to 570,562 early in January on account of the conversion at par of $8,000,000 5½ per cent bonds. With these bonds out of the way there is only $20,000 funded debt preceding the 486,350 shares of $3.50 preferred stock and 570,562 shares of common stock.

With the absorption of Bingham Mines Co. the outstanding common stock will be increased by 50,000 shares to 620,562 shares. The absorption of Bingham will add approximately 10,000,000 pounds of lead and 1,000,000 ounces of silver to the Smelting. In 1928 output of 106,350,000 pounds of lead and 25,821,017 ounces of silver. Bingham's output in 1927 from both silver and lead division was considerably larger than in 1928, so that under the administration of United States Smelting, the Bingham properties should yield closer to 13,000,000 pounds of lead and 1,500,000 ounces of silver.

Working the Bingham properties as part of the big United States Smelting organization should result in larger earnings due to the lower costs that will naturally result from operations in conjunction with its own extensive mining and smelting departments.

RAINIER PULP SHOWS PROFIT OF $486,607

The Rainier Pulp & Paper Co., in operation since July, 1927, reports net profits after federal taxes for the fiscal year ended April 30, last, of $486,607. During the fiscal year the company refined its funded debt, the interest on which and expenses in connection therewith amounting to $162,171 are non-recurring. Before nonrecurring interest and expenses and federal taxes, net earnings amounted to $793,867.

Edward M. Mills, president of the company, in his letter to stockholders, says: "During the year the company's plant has been maintained and improved. A new modern steam unit has been installed in the digester, and a number of large repairs to new being installed. As a result of these improvements the plant will be materially increased and the quality of the product further improved. The management looks forward to continued and increasing prosperity during the coming year."

Benefits from plant improvements already are being reflected in larger earnings since the close of the last fiscal year. The income account for the 12 months ended April 30 last, is as follows:

Sales	$2,430,264
Operating profits	684,273
Non-recurring interest	162,171
Taxes	85,000

CLIMB STEADY IN ELECTRIC OUTPUT

The annual production of electricity in the United States has shown only one decrease in the past ten years, that in 1921, during the industrial depression, the output of electricity decreased 5.9 per cent from 1920. The first half of every year and every other year, including 1929, the increase over the previous year has ranged from 8 per cent, in 1924 to 16.8 per cent, in 1925. In 1928 the increase was particularly 10 per cent over the previous year.

The total production in 1919 was 58,921,000,000 KWH, in 1928 this had increased to 87,850,000,000 KWH, an increase of over 125 per cent.

The percentage of electricity produced by water power has varied during the past ten years from 33.8 per cent, in 1924, to 39.6 per cent, in 1928. In 1921 the reduction in water power electricity was 7.3 per cent, in all other years the increase has ranged from 3.2 per cent, in 1924 to 17.1 per cent, in 1926. Last year the increase was 9.1 per cent, over 1927, whereas steam electricity, which obtained up in almost the end of the year, during December showed a good return January and February, water conditions are good and the percentage of electricity produced by hydro systems was only 33 per cent of the total during those months.

In 1928 the public utility plants in the United States developed a total of 8,858,843,000 KWH of electricity, of which 2,377,569,000 KWH were produced by water power, and the balance by fuel.

GREAT UTILITY PLANS PENDING

Journal of Commerce says indications of widespread activity in public utility mergers compared in which recent activities in New England will appear relatively comparatively minor undertaking.

It also is reported that United Light & Power Co., controlling companies in New York State and throughout the Middle West, is being sought by several large interests, including those associated with J. P. Morgan & Co.

Although nothing definite is known it is generally believed in the Morgan interests are planning co-operating in their utility plans. Understood that new Electric Bond & Share holding company will soon offer its stock in exchange for stock of various subsidiaries on approximately following basis: One share for each share of National Power & Light; 1½ shares for each share of American Gas & Electric.

Issuance of new stock would be around $80 and company would have initially outstanding capitalization of 1,418,438 shares, with total market value of $647,103,380.

Private Bank in New York Closed

New York, June 29 (INS)—Clarke Brothers, bankers, one of the oldest private banking institutions in the New York city, posted a notice today that it was unable to meet demands for withdrawals. Consequently, it was deemed necessary, "for the protection of creditors," to ask the court for permission for appointment of a receiver "to take care of the property. The bank had been in existence since the days of the Civil War.

AGED GENERAL SAVED FROM EVICTION

Nice, France, June 29 (AP)—Generosity of the former Anna Gould, now Duchess De Talleyrand, probably will prevent the aged French Gen. Rambaud and his wife to round out their life at their home here

In 1926 the rent on the Rambaud little apartment was increased from 2o0 to 3000 francs a year Mme Rambaud refused to pay the increase and to designate her disapproval refused to pay the original amount either

An order for eviction and confiscation was obtained four days ago, but when police appeared they found the doors and windows barricaded and the irate wife of the old soldier refused to let them or court officials in

The Duchess De Talleyrand learned of the affair and wired officials at once, asking the amount of the debt and indicating she would pay it They answered 15,600 francs, or about $600

The general's health is bad and he is compelled to remain indoors Mme. Rambaud, however, has gone about her marketing as usual He is 81 and she 78, both have lived here since his retirement in 1911

Lawlor, Former Hand Ball Champion, Dies

New York, June 29 (AP)—John Lawlor, prominent Irish labor leader and former world's champion hand ball player, died in Dublin last Wednesday, friends here were advised today He was 73 years old.

He came to America in 1869 to play Phil Casey, trainer of John L. Sullivan, for the hand ball championship and lost his title. After his defeat he lived in this country three years. Besides his widow and son, he is survived by two brothers, John and Dan Lawlor, of Ballston Spa, N. Y

Fin. Com. Attacks School Board Method

The finance commission takes the school committee to task in the matter of awarding contracts and cites a number of instances where the lowest bidder was not given the contract

At the same time, the commission in its report declares that the same practise has been carried on in the schoolhouse department and in the water meter department of the supply division.

Dempsey Undecided About His Return

San Francisco, June 29 (INS)—Jack Dempsey, ex-heavyweight champion today continues to be undecided "Yes and No" man of pugilism

Here to keep a theatrical engagement, Dempsey was asked if he intended returning to the ring He responded

"No, I wouldn't say I'm coming back. And I wouldn't say I'm not."

How Love Saved Woman From Clutches of Crooks

CHAPTER 6

Joyce looked at the card Ellen brought: Mr. Richard Brant: she nodded and composed herself for the ordeal she knew was coming.

"I'm from Scotland Yard," announced Mr. Brant as he entered.

"I'm very anxious to ask you if you can account for the men in your household," he said blandly.

Joyce quailed inwardly.

Joyce explained who they were and how she had met them and told him of her husband's death.

"Did they make any claim on your husband's estate?" asked Brant.

"None at all," Joyce assured him.

"Thank you very much, Mrs. Nisbet," said Brant pleasantly, "and now can I see Mr. Grant Dalton."

Lucky for Joyce that she was more or less prepared for this question. "They are both away at present, she answered.

Brant seemed satisfied. "Oh, well, if you can vouch for them probably it is all right," he said in his quiet way. "Are there any other male inmates of your house?"

"Only one," Joyce answered. "My butler, Jenkins."

"When did he come to you?"

"There's no doubt in your mind I suppose, about Jenkins being all right?" he said easily.

Joyce raised her eyebrows slightly. "None whatever. I never had a better or more dependable servant."

That sounds satisfactory. I presume the agency gave good credentials with him?"

"The best. I told them I wanted a really good man, and I got him."

Brant slipped a hand into his inner pocket and brought out two telegrams. "Then it seems to me that these need a little explaining," he remarked as he smoothed them and handed them to Joyce. They were copies of the two wires she had received from the agency, the first saying that Jenkins was delayed, the second saying that he was not coming.

Joyce felt the blood draining from her cheeks, and for a moment was on the verge of giving way to sheer panic, but she was a fighter and when she looked up her face showed nothing but a mild annoyance. "These agencies are always making muddles," she remarked.

Brant's face cleared. "I see," he said with a nod. "Just to satisfy myself you will allow me to have a word with Jenkins."

Joyce got up and rang the bell. Ellen came. "Tell Jenkins I want him, Ellen," said Joyce.

"I haven't seen him this afternoon, ma'am, I think he's out," was the maid's reply.

Joyce turned to the detective. "How stupid of me!" she said with a laugh. "I had quite forgotten. It's his afternoon out. Would you like to wait for him?"

"I'm afraid I'm too busy," said Mr. Brant, rising, "You feel sure of this matter?"

"You are very difficult to convince," said Joyce with a smile. "If you do not believe me you should ask Major Merrvale, the prison Governor. He lunched with me the other day, and we also talked with Jenkins that he asked for the reversion of him if he ever left my service."

Brant's eyes widened. "The Prison Governor. Did he, though." Joyce saw with intense satisfaction that she had made a hit at last. Brant rose.

"Well, I must be getting along, he said quietly.

No sooner had Brant gone than Ellen entered with a cablegram. It was a long one; there were two sheets of typed script and Joyce turned and laid them on a small table by the center of the room and smoothed them out. The address was Denver, and the first sheet was as follows:

"URGENT. HAWK HALSTEAD, ALIAS FULTON, WANTED ON MURDER CHARGE BELIEVED HIDING. S. A. STOP IF YOU KNOW ANYTHING OF HIM INFORM ENGLISH POLICE IMMEDIATELY. STOP. AM ADVISING YARD. STOP."

Joyce stood stock still, petrified by this amazing news which more than confirmed all that Dench had said. And while she stood the door opened softly and Grant Dalton came quietly in. He crept forward and peering over her shoulder read the cable as it lay on the table.

So deathly quiet had been his approach that Joyce had no suspicion of his presence until, looking up, she caught sight of his face in the mirror over the mantel.

Petrified by Dalton's glare in his eyes, she opened her mouth to scream, but Grant seized her by the hair, twisting her to one side out of reach of the cable, choking the breath out of her.

Joyce was as helpless as a child in his grip; he had overpowered her before she could move and dragged her from the table with a sudden wrench.

"You don't get away with that message," he snarled. "If they want to know who finished you—it's Dench!"

Joyce was choking. She felt the blood drumming in her ears, her head seemed to be swelling—burst-ing.

"Dench's work!" said Grant, his face alight with fury, his fingers tightening. Then the wall panel clicked and opened back. Dench himself leaped out.

Quick as he was, Grant was quicker.

He released Joyce and sprang back, whipping out a pair of guns, one from each side pocket; one of them covered Dench, while the muzzle of the other pointed full at Joyce.

"Hold there, Dench!" he snapped, swift as a whiplash, 'one move—one peep and you're both get." But her first. Watch it, now—I've got her, and you, too."

Dench stood still. The risk was too great a one to take. The risk—not to himself, but to Joyce.

"You called me here! This send for a murder, Dench," he snarled "you're wrong. "I'm for the chair myself if I'm found out—but it's only got one life. You're both for it if you stop me!"

The deadlock was broken by the sudden opening of the door leading into the sitting room from the passage, and Jeff Dalton stepped into the room. For an instant he stood, frozen. Then he gathered himself together and saw him in the mirror opposite.

"Stay right where you are, Ballard," he snarled. "If you come one step in I'll shoot her in front of you. It isn't Dench nor you I'll get first, it's her."

Jeff stepped as if turned to stone. He realized the man was killing mad, and that his fingers were trembling on the triggers of his pistols.

There were now four people in the room. Next moment a shower darkened the doorway. Philip came in quietly, and stopped short. He saw Joyce's face, but it was now as white as his father's. He was terrified at the situation, Grant saw him as a boy of seven. Jeffin the glass

"Get the car!" he ordered. "Don't stand there gaping like a fool—make everything ready for our getaway. I'll handle these three!"

Philip's face was ashen gray as his eyes, she opened her mouth to scream, but Grant seized her by the hair, twisting her to one side out of reach of the cable, choking the breath out of her.

Joyce was as helpless as a child in his grip; he had overpowered her, and flinging both arms round his neck from behind jerked him backwards, at the same time kicking his legs from under him. Both crashed to the floor together, Jeff underneath; as he felt Jeff caught Grant's left arm and pinned it so that he could not use it. Grant twisted and struggled like a madman, striving desperately to use the pistol which he still held in his right hand.

Blood was dripping from Dench's right arm, yet he threw himself in-to the fray and gripping Grant's wrist, left hand over wrist, with such fearful force that the pistol dropped from Grant's nerveless fingers.

The three, locked together, rolled and rocked from side to side, the struggle over with a crash, the issue of the struggle was still in doubt when a fourth man suddenly burst into the room, and flung himself into the fray. Then it was done so quickly it was like a conjuring trick—a pair of steel bracelets were snapped on Grant's wrists, and he was living helpless on the floor, glaring up at his captor, shot furious eyes into the face of Inspector Richard Brant.

Jeff picked to his feet and stared wonderingly at the new arrival. Dench rose and stood holding his dripping arm with his good hand, his face lined with pain. Blood was soaking through his sleeve.

Brant turned to Dench. "The warders will be here very shortly, Jake Dench. You don't want the bracelets on, do you?"

"I'll go quietly, Captain," replied Dench with a laugh. "I've had a run for my money."

Joyce came to life.

"Handcuffs!" she cried "You'll put no handcuffs on a wounded man, if you've got to put them on anyone, put them on me! And not that till I've tended him!" He risked his life to save me, and he's hurt—can't you see he's hurt! Jeff get some hot water from the bathroom. Quick—quick. Help me to take his coat off, Mr. Brant!"

Dench began to protest weakly, but Brant, cool as ever and smiling dryly took charge of him.

"What about the younger Dalton?" Jeff asked the detective. "He went to get the car a minute or two before you arrived."

"We pinched him right enough," replied Brant with a dry smile. "My colleague saw to that."

The tension was relieved by the crunch of wheels on the gravel outside, and the Governor's car came to a stop outside the front door. A moment later Major Merrivale and two warders strode into the room.

"You phoned me you had caught Dench. What's he to be?"

"There he is, Major."

The Governor moved nearer. "Eh," he said slowly. "Yes, I see. And wounded." His face darkened. "Did he resist arrest," cried Joyce. "He resisted the man who tried to murder me, and was shot in doing it. He took the bullet that was meant for me."

"You've got your convict," yelled Dalton. "Now get the woman who sheltered him and backed him. She picked him up on the Moor and brought him home in her car, and she's been running him ever since."

"You'll not take the word of a murderer against a lady, sir," said Dench quietly.

Jeff broke in.

"Listen to me, Major! She knew nothing about it."

Dench cut him short roughly.

"He knows nothing about it either, sir," he said to the Governor. "I did this thing on my own and I'm the only man who could have done it." he added with a touch of pride.

"You dirty liar!" yelled Grant behind himself with fury.

The Governor turned to Dench "Now, Dench, what have you to say?"

"You know how I got away, Sir. I needn't tell you that. What you don't know is that I'd already met Mrs. Nesbit when she passed our party on the tuft tire and recognized her. I worked for her late husband, Captain Nesbit, in America, and knew her face from a photograph he always carried with him.

"My chance came easier than I reckoned. That foggy night, when she went to Taviton Station to pick up her butler, Jenkins, I was hiding in an empty truck in the siding, and I saw her come on to the down platform. The light shone through the open door, and I saw her recognize the man she thought was Jenkins. She said she was expecting a butler for that train. The train came in, and when it had gone there she was with the butler.

"I saw in a moment the man hadn't come, and I worked quick. I was over the side of that truck in a tick and back through the fog and over the fence and reached her car. It was the only one there, so I couldn't make any mistake.

"Of course I knew my clothes would give me away. My only chance was that there might be a change of coat and the luck was with me. There was a coat and a cap too. I found out, since, that your word for it. But you've given us a lot of trouble and now there's the bill to pay."

"Don't you let him out!" she exclaimed, her lip quivering.

"Dear words, Mrs. Nesbit" said the Governor, seriously, above a whisper her big hand gently touching her hand. He knew that Joyce's case was no help for her, but he'll have every attention in the prison infirmary, and I'll make the strongest representations in the proper quarter. Believe me, you have done a fine thing, Joyce. I may not be long before he is clear."

Joyce flushed him a look of intense gratitude.

Brant turned to the Governor. "I must see about my prisoners, Major, and get them off to-night. I'll send them up to look after Dench themselves Mrs. Nesbit. I hope to see you very soon again," he added with a smile.

When he had gone the two warders came up and received their order.

"Take Dench down to the hall and see that he is made comfortable, putting his wounded arm comfortable in its sling walked out between them with as much dignity as he could muster, the butler at his best.

Joyce saw that the Governor wished to speak privately to Jeff and followed Dench out. The Major stood twisting his mustache, badly embarrassed.

"Mrs. Nesbit, I'm afraid this business is bound to get into the papers," he began. "You're sure to have reporters here by tomorrow." He paused and looked at Joyce inquiringly.

"You may trust me to be very careful, Major," she told him.

The Governor's face brightened hopefully.

"But there's one point I specially want to speak about. That lunch party. If the story got out that one of my own convicts had waited on me without my knowing it, that would be the very devil. I should look such a dashed fool. A perfect damned fool!"

Joyce felt the laughter bubbling up inside her. But she checked it sternly. She felt genuine affection, almost affection, for the Governor.

"You may be quite certain, Major, that not in one the house will say a word."

They went down together. "Dench," said the Major, "you can go into the dining-room. Mrs. Nesbit would like to have a word with you."

Jeff opened the dining-room door, and closed it when the three were inside.

Joyce took his hand in both hers. "When you're free, you'll come to me at once. Not as butler. No! As a free man."

Dench looked hard at her.

"You are a fighter in every respect. What do you suppose any one can do with a man like me."

"Anything you're prepared to do," said Joyce, "I'll show you that. We'll be waiting for you at Deeping, Jeff and I."

"We surely will," said Jeff, and gripped the hand that Dench held out to him.

"I hope it will be both of you," said Dench.

He turned out. A minute later, Jeff and Joyce, standing in the porch of Deeping, watched the Prison car swing out of the drive. Dench waved his unwounded arm. The car climbed the long hill and rounded the curve, reaching the great granite gate with its hundred-and-odd mutts carved in stone —"Fitzvere Subjects"—Spare the Fallen.

Joyce walked slowly back into the sunshine. Keen scented sage, rose garden. Jeff slow the door quietly, and as he turned to her she was in his arms. Her lips met his and he held her close, her heart throbbing against his breast.

So till then did Jeff realise what he owed to Jake Dench.

THE END.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JOYCE NESBIT, an attractive young widow living near Dartmoor prison, meets Jeff Ballard, an American. Joyce has bought Deeping Royal, his old home. Two distant relatives by marriage, Grant and Philip Dalton, father and son, are taking care of her fortune. Jeff sizes up the men as crooks. Joyce orders them to get out. Jeff tells her if she were poor he would marry her; she persuades him to become engaged to her as a means of protection. In a file of convicts passing Joyce recognizes a man named Dench. One of two escaped convicts holds up her car.

She is rescued by another escaped convict who proves to be Dench, once her dead husband's valet. She passes him off as her butler. The Daltons recognize him, but he amazes them by recognising them, too, as crooks, and threatens to send them to jail if they give him away. They are after Joyce's money and take him into partnership, the elder Dalton telling his son that if Dench gets troublesome there's one sure way to stop him. Dalton tells Joyce he has evidence her husband is not dead. He gets £200 for expenses. She gives it to him. Dench holds him up and takes half.

A Mrs. Holt appears who says she's from the States and the wife of Capt. Nesbit, who married under the name of Holt. She produces proofs, including photographs, that convince Joyce she is speaking the truth.

Dench exposes a fake Mrs. Nesbit after Joyce has given her $25,000. He gets the money back. Dalton comes home drunk and Dench locks him in a cellar. A Scotland Yard detective appears and Joyce shows Dench a secret hiding place behind a panel.

Nancy Plans to Use Rich Relatives on Trip With Roger

What Has Gone Before

Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, pursued by Mat Tulley, is warned by her mother not to wed a poor man. Nancy follows her mother's advice and turns Mat down.

She yearns for the pretty things that the girls of wealth possess. She makes up her mind to catch Jack Beamer, rich but married. That word, married, does not trouble Nancy. He can give her what she wants. Nancy walks in the grove with Beamer, who is infatuated. Mat and sister Louise, searching for Nancy and Beamer, find the two hugging and kissing 'neath the trees.

Nancy gets in at 3 a. m. Louise accuses Nancy and asks her if she wants to figure in a divorce suit named by Mrs. Beamer.

Nancy after scheming meets the "good-looker," Roger Deeatur, a forest ranger.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 9

"HE'S a ranger. His name is Decatur, Roger Decatur," Louise explained patiently.

"Decatur! Did you say Decatur? That's all I can make out of it," Aunt Ellie, after five courses and two desserts, was befuddled with food. She spoke very loudly, and one or two belated diners turned and smiled.

"Shh!" Lou begged, piloting her through the little tables of the dining room, back to the most comfortable chair in the lobby. "Shh! They'll hear!" For Nancy and her ranger were walking out that angle.

"If it's his name," Aunt Ellie said severely, "he shouldn't be ashamed to hear it spoken. I don't know what Kitty would say about this taking up with strange men—"

"He isn't a strange man, auntie. Nancy met him this afternoon. It's quite all right. Mama wouldn't mind. She'd be glad Nancy was going to have a good time."

A piercing stare. "Oh, if you would also like to leave me to have A GOOD TIME—"

"Oh, no, Aunt Ellie. OF COURSE not!"

Aunt Ellie, her suspicions aroused, wasn't easy to placate. It was a delightful surprise when some new arrivals, surrounded with bellhops and luggage, came blinking into the light from the darkness outside and fell upon her with little cries and gasps of delight:

"Papa, it's Mrs. Watson! How do you DO!"

"How do you DO, Mrs. Watson!"

"How do you do. Isn't it BEAUTIFUL tonight? We had the grandest trip in—we made it in SIX hours!"

The Porters, mama, papa and daughters, Gladys and Essie, were dear acquaintances of Uncle Joseph's. Simple, good-natured folk, who toadied to DEAR Mrs. Watson, were overcome at the thought of actually meeting her nieces, the Hollenbeck girls who were "in society."

Aunt Ellie presented Louise.

"And I think we've never met you before," Mrs. Porter cried, scarlet with pleasure, flower-trimmed toque over one ear. "Oh, don't it be nice for Essie and Gladys that you are here?"

And where is Miss—Miss Nancy?" "Oh, she's a beau," said Aunt Ellie, dourly.

"Girls will be girls," observed Mr. Porter playfully and pinched plump Essie's arm. "Let's get his girls, 20 and 22, respectively, had not been troubled with beaux, but he expected it to start in any time.

"We're traveling in the big car. The big car!" Mrs. Porter burried on breathlessly. "There's room for seven. Seven, comfortable. Isn't that fine papa, us four, and you three? Room for all. We can go all over the valley and see the sights. Bridal Veil Falls and all!"

"That'll be nice." Aunt Ellie said and smiled. Rising in the Porters' car, burning the Porters' gas, would certainly be cheaper than paying to ride in a sight-seeing bus. Visioning inexpensive pleasure to come, she chattered good-naturedly with Lou after the others, bag and baggage, had gone to their rooms. Everything's working out fine!" she said, and when she finally went yawning to bed she didn't say a word about Nancy—still out with the ranger.

The Porters, one and all, were charmed with the prettiest Hollenbeck girl. "Not a bit stuck up!" they told Aunt Ellie.

She had exclaimed over Mrs. Porter's old fashioned diamond rings, set high up on little prongs, from her heart. Old-fashioned hands and shook her head sympathetically while Mr. Porter told about the brewery business he used to have, and how wines and liquors undermined the morale of a nation but never! Beer was good for the stomach! And borrowed Essie's cucumber cream, and gave Gladys some of her pink nail powder. It was so easy for Nancy to be nice to everyone, when she was happy.

She was happy now. Gay, and lovely and beloved. In her singing heart there was room for even the dull, plodding Porters.

Jack Beamer sent six new novels and an immense tin box of special chocolates. He sent a letter, too. A fat, rambling letter that began, "My precious little girl," and ended, "With a thousand kisses from your lover, Jack."

The letter scared her a little, but it thrilled her too. It made the quick color mount to her soft, pearl tinted cheeks, and pleasant little tingles chase each other up and down her spine. There wasn't a thought in Jack Beamer not in love. Terribly in love. He had broached the subject of divorce to his wife on the night he left Reno. "Then three months, and you'll be my Christmas present to myself."

Married to Jack Beamer before the new year.... thinking of that building on that kept her from caring too much while Lou fussed over a letter from mama, complaining that papa wasn't very well, and that unless Aunt Ellie loaned them some money the repairs on the house would have to be made. Essie and Gladys, scaly, earnest young women with flat heels and mannish sailor hats, giggled appreciatively.

And where is Miss—Miss Nancy?" "Oh, she's a beau," said Aunt Ellie, dourly.

The flat-heeled sisters tittered sympathetically.

"Girls will be girls," observed Mr. Porter playfully and pinched plump Essie's arm. Essie, let

NEWS AND VIEWS OF MODERN HOMES

FINE POINTS of MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

PLUMBING is going to be our theme in today's standard building material chat. Surely no part of the domestic equipment can be much more important or mean more to the women conducting a modern home in a modern manner.

Betty Bonnell

If I had the space in this brief column, I'd love nothing better than to trace the history of plumbing—the art and effort employed during the various ages of man to supply the domestic menage with the most necessary of all domestic requirements: water.

From the early prehistoric days, when the tribes or clans made camp close to natural springs or along the banks of rivers in order to be close to a water supply, down to the present would be interesting ground to cover. For instance, it is not so very, very long ago—in post-Colonial times, in fact—when the city's water supply was furnished through pipes made by the simple process of hollowing out the trunks of trees and joining them together.

In planning a modern home such as this sponsored by the Boston Evening American Modern Homes Bureau, everything going into its plumbing and sanitation equipment should be weighed carefully. Modern science and ingenuity have done much to bring this type of equipment up to a very high standard of both quality and convenience—the builder of the modern home makes a serious error in not insisting that his or her future domicile be given the gest in this respect.

Pipes are now manufactured in non-corrosive metals; valves are made to last indefinitely; sanitary kitchen investiture can be selected for the modern—and modest—home of undreamed of beauty, durability and convenience. With a little discrimination and judgment, the bath room of the modern home may out-rival, on a small scale, the same room of a costly chateau.

Reliable plumbing supplies of standard design and quality are sold in Boston by the Boston Plumbing and Lighting Supply Co. and the State Supply Co.

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in construction of the Modern Home will be sent to you if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

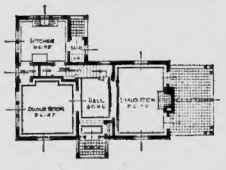
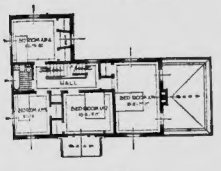
Colonial House to Cost About $11,000



FIRST FLOOR PLAN



SECOND FLOOR PLAN

An Inviting Home, Splendidly Planned
By National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc.

FOR the open suburbs or a country setting, a simple New England Colonial house looks well.

This house, A-72, has an inviting latticed entrance porch to bid one welcome and a cool protected living porch that brings one close to nature.

The house has a finish of large shingles. The side walls are white while the roof is finished in a dark green. The shutters should be finished in apple green or Colonial blue, pastel shades.

From the front entrance porch one is led into a small arched vestibule that has a coat closet on one side, thence we pass into a generous hall and admire the Colonial stairway that gracefully leads to the second floor.

On the second floor we find four bedrooms and a bath. Each bedroom has at least one closet and a generous linen closet is provided off the hall. The hall has a window that gives good light to the stairs.

One bedroom and a bath are provided on the third floor.

This gives a total of five bedrooms and two baths, ample for a good-size family.

This house measures 47 feet across the front and should have a lot with a frontage of not less than 65 feet.

Cost about $11,000.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Home Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Refer to House A-72.

REALTY LICENSE LAW UPHELD

By a decision of the State Supreme Court the constitutionality of the real estate license law of the state of Florida has been upheld.

The act was attacked on the ground that it was in violation of the provisions of both the United States and the Florida constitutions. Thirty of the 48 sections of the real estate act were attacked as violating some specific provision of one or both constitutions.

Regarding 29 of the 30 sections attacked, the opinion of the justices was unanimous. Regarding that section of the law which requires an applicant for license as a real estate broker in the state to be a resident of Florida the opinion was divided, three to three.

In giving its decision the court made the following statement:

"Real estate is one of the two great divisions of property rights, and bears as close a relation to the public peace and welfare of our civilization as any species of private rights.

"There is involved in the relation of real estate broker and client a measure of trust analogous to that of an attorney at law to his client, or agent to his principal . . . and the occupation of 'Broker,' in sons engaged therein, is deemed a proper subject of regulation under cluding 'Real Estate Broker' or perthe police power."

A news item says that in order to help combat inroads of electric refrigeration ice men in New York will hereafter be attired in natty blue uniforms.

"And I suppose," comments Shelby Brink, "when one of the Boys in Blue is shot in the pants by an irate husband he will be awarded a wound stripe."

A master stroke, on the part of the ice barons, would be to place John Gilbert in charge of deliveries.

Sex appeal for ice men is all right—but it seems rather ironic that the sheiks should have to carry ice.

MISTER WHALEN IS JUST AN OLD MEANIE

(Press Dispatch)

NEW YORK—New York policemen can no longer spend any of their time hanging over speakeasy bars, under the terms of a new order by Police Commissioner Whalan.

Henceforth, the commissioner's order states, the presence of policemen in illicit saloons can be condoned only when they are there in performance of their duty.

This is Professor Hardlicka Doake, who has made important discoveries in a lot adjacent to his home. He accidentally discovered a pile, or mound, of empty bottles, which leads him to the conclusion that prohibition must have been tried out by prehistoric man.

NEW KAY STORE OPENS TODAY

The 37th unit in the Kay Jewelry Co. of chain stores will be opened today at 285 Union st., Lynn.

This latest Kay store continues the most modern in appointments and scientific arrangement to offer comfort and convenience to customers.

The policy of maintaining the credit and charge service for those who wish to avail themselves of this plan will be one of the features of this new store.

Further service is rendered in many ways. The firm's corps of diamond experts comb the European markets for the choicest lots of these precious gems, which are imported by them direct. Its 37 store buying power places it in the position of being able to purchase tremendous quantities and receive price concessions, which are always shared with its patrons.

Dealing exclusively in standard nationally advertised jewelry, the Kay stores feature such well known brands as 1847 Rogers Bros. silverplate, Hamilton, Illinois sterling, Bulova, Elgin and Waltham watches, and Seth Thomas clocks. New styles and Sessions clocks at cash prices on their credit charge plan.

Philadelphia Club Entertained in Hub

Members of the City Business Club of Philadelphia arrived in Boston today on the Merchants & Miners Transportation Company's steamer Chesterfield. The morning was given over to sightseeing, visiting Concord and other historical places of interest, and later the group of about 25 was received by Mayor Nichols at City Hall.

At noon the visitors will be tendered a luncheon in the main dining room of the Chamber of Commerce, 30 Federal st., where they will be received by officials of the chamber, and will leave for Philadelphia in the evening on the steamer Dorchester.

Three Injured in Somerville Crash

Three persons, including a woman, were injured when two automobiles crashed on the Alewife Parkway, Somerville, during the rainstorm last evening. They were Mr. and Mrs. Sven A. A. Tornajo of 67 Overlook rd., Arlington, They were taken to Somerville Hospital and treated for lacerations and other injuries.

Riding in the other machine figuring in the accident was Frederick E. Hexon of 37½ Powder House boulevard, Somerville. Hexon was slightly injured and treated by a family physician.

New Englanders at Hearst Paris Bureau

Paris, June 28—Celebrities, as well as just plain folks' find their way to the Hearst Newspapers Information Bureau here every day. This week there was Dr. Alexis, well-known American illusionist, who is making a big hit at the Empire Vaudeville.

"This Bureau makes just as big a hit with me," he said, after obtaining the addresses of several American chiropractors in Paris—information he had been looking for all over the city. "My collarbone needs attention and the concierge at my big hotel said he'd never heard of such a thing and tried to make me believe they didn't exist. I was sure the Hearst Bureau would be able to tell me."

"Jackson" bicycle rider, who has just finished a season at the Moulin Rouge, came in to see about his passage back to the States.

The Zitenfeld Twins, channel swimmers, and their mother, were in to read the accounts of their stunts in the Boston Evening American.

Jim Tully, ex-hobo and writer, wanted to know where to find the Thin Man and Fat Woman's Tomb.

Dine and Dance

The dance clientele of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Co. has endorsed the buffet lunch served aboard the Mayflower on its moonlight sailing trips down the harbor into the canyons.

The Mayflower Commodores orchestra is popular with dancers. The song, "Oh the Mayflower, You and I," is presented to each passenger. The boat returning to its pier at 12 o'clock. Dancing continues until midnight.
